"Ugly Word" Passed at Meeting of the School Committee

Chairman Delaney Accuses Superintendent of Schools With Uttering Untruths

Recommendation Offered by the Superintendent Adopted by the Board

Teachers Alleged to Have Been Previously Defrauded Are Elected

Amidst fiery debate, in the course of which Superintendent of Schools Molloy was twice branded a liar by Chairman Delaney of the school board, that body voted yesterday afternoon to elect as permanent substitutes and immediately afterward as teachers in the primary grades, six young women who, according to Mr. Molloy's documents and testimony, were defrauded at the February elections, when they should have been chosen in place of others who were. The insistence of prominent local attorneys, representing the four young women in danger of losing their positions, that they be heard, threatened at times to throw the session into an uproar, while a running fire of comments from spectators, who also cheered, hissed, and otherwise gave vent to their emotions on numerous occasions, contributed to the fireworks.

Those who were constituted permanent substitutes by the action of the

Regardless of Verdicts of Juries, Baseball to Protect Itself Against Crooks

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—None of the American League players acquitted last night of an alleged criminal conspiracy to throw the 1919 world series has any immediate prospect of being restored to organized baseball, according to a statement issued today by Judge K. M. Landis, national baseball commissioner.

"Regardless of the verdict of juries," said the statement, "no player that throws a ball game, no player that entertains proposals or promises to throw a game, no player that sits in a conference with a bunch of crooked players and gamblers where the ways and means of throwing games are discussed and does not promptly tell his club about it, will ever play professional baseball."

"Of course I do not know that any of these men will apply for reinstatement, but if they do the above are at least a few of the rules that will be enforced."

"Just keep it in mind that, regardless of verdicts of juries, baseball is entirely competent to protect itself against the crooks both inside and outside the game."

BIG INCREASE IN DRUNKENNESS HERE

A huge jump in the number of drunkenness arrests in Lowell, eclipsing not only the record of all previous months of the present year, but also the report for July of 1920, was announced today at the office of the probation officer as having been revealed by a talling of the figures for the past month.

During July 165 drunkenness arrests were made in Lowell, 152 being men and 13 of women. Compared with the tally of July, 1920, the record gives the following startling comparison: Twenty-two more individuals were taken in custody during a single month of the present year in Lowell, than were arrested a year ago. In July, 1920, the number of men arrested for intoxication was only 135, and of women 4, making the complete sum 143, or 22 less than in July of the present year.

The figures for all preceding months of this year follow: January, 104 arrests; February, 126 arrests; March, 126 arrests; April, 131 arrests; May, 143 arrests; June, 142 arrests; and July, 165 arrests.

THOUSANDS AT BIER OF CARUSO

Scenes of Extreme Pathos Enacted—Church Crowded for Solemn High Mass

NAPLES, Aug. 3.—(By the Associated Press)—Sorrowing Naples and Italy today paid tribute to the memory of Enrico Caruso, the great tenor who died here early yesterday morning. Thousands gathered at a solemn requiem mass celebrated at the church of Madonna della Gracia, or stood uncovered along the streets leading to that edifice while the funeral cortege passed. In the choir which assisted in the impressive ceremonies, were many men and women who have played stellar roles on the operatic stage.

Scenes of extreme pathos were enacted all day yesterday at the Hotel Vesuvius, following the death of the man, popularly acknowledged to be the premier tenor of his generation. Neighbors of every class stood in line for many hours to file past the bier of Caruso, which was placed in the room where he had died. From time to time, the silent procession would pause while some man or woman would kneel for a moment beside the body and offer prayer.

The body was clad in evening clothes and over it was shed the mellow light of four candles, two at the head, and two at the feet. At the dead tenor's side were garlands of roses arranged personally by Mrs. Caruso.

The master singer, who had for nearly a quarter of a century enacted roles in which death was an unseen player, apparently was cognizant of his critical condition, following his sudden illness on Monday. Just before he sank into the coma which was the prelude to the end, he said to his son, Bos:

"I feel very ill. This time it will be difficult to escape."

Newspapers of this city, in telling of the death of Caruso, quote one of the attending physicians as saying: "I and my colleagues believe Caruso never fully recovered from his illness in New York last winter. His long sickness from pleurisy weakened his resistance."

Condolences of U. S. Government

ROME, Aug. 3.—Richard Washburn Child, American ambassador to Italy, has sent to Mrs. Enrico Caruso and other relatives of the dead tenor the condolences of the United States government.

Caruso, according to estimates in the newspapers, left a fortune of about $6,000,000. (At the normal value of the lire, this would represent about $8,000,000.)

SUBURBAN DAY IS BIG SUCCESS

Unusually heavy business was reported this afternoon by local merchants, who are celebrating Suburban Day by special bargains in all departments. The ideal weather conditions are believed responsible for the influx of shoppers from outlying towns, who kept the sales forces of mercantile establishments on their toes attending to their wants.

Managers of many stores expressed gratification at the co-operation given by the public to the efforts of Lowell business men to reduce prices by increasing the volume of trade. It was announced that plans for the Suburban day scheduled for September will be gotten under way immediately.

The Sun is credited with a large share of the success of the occasion by the merchants, as a result of featuring the importance of the bargains offered to local and out-of-town residents.

MAYOR IS TO START PROBE

Officials Think Investigation of Purchasing Agent's Office Will Be Fruitless

A probe is to be sunk deep into the alleged purchase by a city official of a large quantity of paving blocks without advertising for bids, and is claimed under conditions that were not as favorable as they might have been to the municipality, according to a statement coming from the office of Mayor Perry D. Thompson today.

It also became known today that it was only after two and a half months' effort, and a final move to bring legal pressure to bear that the chamber of commerce was able to secure information from the city officials as to the cost of constructing streets in the past. It was stated at a mass meeting on the South common yesterday that the chamber had made no effort to secure correct figures from the street department regarding the cost of building highways in the past.

According to information coming from the chamber's rooms, the figures as to paving costs were brought to the chamber headquarters July 26 by a city official after counsel had been consulted as to the taking of steps to force the revealing of figures.

Letter to the Mayor

The decision to probe deep into alleged irregularities in the purchase of paving blocks, at an expense to the city of more than $20,000, was reached by the mayor today, after the receipt of a letter from Secretary-Manager George F. Wells, of the chamber of commerce reading substantially as follows:

"Our attention has been called to an article published in a newspaper with respect to purchase of and payment for blocks for new construction of highways in the city of Lowell, which appears to be contrary to certain provisions of our municipal charter."

"Will you be so kind as to communicate with us with respect to the above matter informing us as to whether there, in fact, has been a violation?"

GORDON HIGHLANDER VISITING HERE

Col. John W. Tucker of the Gordon Highlanders of Aberdeen, Scotland, is the guest of his brother, John George Tucker of 38 Orleans street. The visitor expects to leave Lowell within a few days for Silesia, where he is to become military dictator for Great Britain.

Colonel Tucker came to this country on a private diplomatic mission and a few days ago held a conference with President Harding at Plymouth. He is expecting a cablegram from military headquarters in England any day and as soon as orders are received, he will sail.

The visitor, who is attired in his full military uniform, has been in the service a great many years, entering as a private and rising gradually to the rank of colonel. He served in the world war and was wounded several times, his most severe injury being to his right hand, which was almost severed by a piece of shrapnel. He is a college graduate and a linguist, being able to speak fluently English, French, Flemish and German. For some time during the war he was located at British headquarters on the battle-field as official interpreter.

Portland Men to go to Work at Any Price They See Fit to Accept

Officers of Union Release All Members—Many Return to Work Immediately

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 3.—There is no stated price which a union painter shall receive from his employer in this city beginning today. Property owners were notified through an advertisement signed by officers of Painters' local union No. 237. In the local newspapers today, that it had been voted to release every member to go to work wherever he saw fit at any price per hour.

They stated that they had been resisting "lockout conditions" for the last eight weeks and had been unable to get a settlement, at different conferences with the employers. They claimed they had received only 55 cents an hour out of $1.10 to $1.30 paid by the public.

Representatives of the employers' organization said that as the result of the announcement, some of the men would go back into the shops at once. They said others previously had gone back and some had threatened to do so, and asserted this was "their last stand."

The minimum wage paid the men was 55 cents an hour, and some were paid more than that, they said. The charge of $1.30 an hour was made, it was explained, only where paperhangers, who receive a higher rate, were employed.

Coakley Replies to Atty. Hurlburt With Bitter Denunciation of Bar Assn.

Defense Counsel Objects to Term That Coakley and Tufts Were "Tied Up"

(Special to The Sun)

BOSTON, Aug. 3.—Fireworks marked the trial of Nathan A. Tufts for alleged malfeasance in office today, when Daniel Coakley, one of Boston's best known lawyers, whom the state charges is tied up with district attorney Tufts in many of the latter's alleged deals, broke out under cross-examination and bitterly denounced the Bar association, which he claimed has been conducting a lying, slandering, malicious campaign against him. The attack came when the special attorney general, Henry F. Hurlburt, concluding cross-examination in the Stearns divorce case, asked Mr. Coakley to present to the court all of his check books and check stubs from 1907 to the present time. Mr. Coakley replied, "I don't think it right to ask me to put in all these financial documents. I don't think it right for you to have them to turn over to the Watch and Ward society. Everything I turned over once to the Bar association got to the Watch and Ward society, and I believe that if I should turn these over to you now, the matter would finally get to the Watch and Ward." Then Mr. Coakley continued: "The Bar association has charged me with dividing the swag with Dist. Atty. Tufts. I said I never would testify before the Bar association without having a stenographic report made of the testimony. The Bar association has been conducting a lying and slanderous campaign."

FURLOUGH FOR MEN OF THE JEWISH FAITH

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—Officers and enlisted men of the Jewish faith in the United States army will be given furloughs for the Rosh Hashonah and Yom Kippur holidays. It was announced today by the Jewish Welfare board. A letter from Secretary of War Weeks addressed to Dr. Cyrus Adler, chairman of the committee on army and navy activities, advises that the following instructions have been issued to the service:

"The secretary of war desires, in order to permit soldiers of the Jewish faith to participate in the celebrations of high holidays (Rosh Hashonah), beginning at sundown October 2, and continuing until sundown Oct. 4, 1921, and of the day of atonement (Yom Kippur), beginning at sundown October 12 and continuing until sundown October 13, 1921, that members of that faith be granted furloughs for such time as necessary to permit them to be at their homes, when practicable, or at places where these celebrations are held, from September 30 to October 6, and from October 11 to October 14, 1921, provided no interference with the public service is occasioned thereby."
A similar order for furloughs for Jewish men in the navy has been issued by Secretary of the Navy Denby. The above orders were issued upon the request of the Jewish Welfare board which advised the army and navy departments regarding the forthcoming holidays.
The furloughs will enable a large number of Jewish men to celebrate the high holidays with their relatives at home.
Where soldiers are stationed too far away from their homes to permit of this, the Jewish Welfare board will make arrangements to have them attend services at towns adjacent to camps, both in the United States and in the insular possessions. Rabbinis will be sent to conduct services at posts where there is a large Jewish personnel and which are not situated near any community.
Special prayer books and New Year's greeting cards will be distributed to the men in the service, by the Jewish Welfare board.

HENRY FORD TELLS HOW TO SAVE RAILROADS

BY E. M. THIERRY
(Copyright 1921 by Newspaper Enterprise)
IN CAMP, VIA OAKLAND, Md., Aug. 2.—"I am not trying to burglarize my railroad—I'm making it serve the public."
That is the boiled-down answer Henry Ford gave when I asked him to tell his "magic formula" for curing America's railroad ills.
Giving two hours out of his vacation in the West Virginia mountains with Mr. S. Firestone and Thomas A. Edison, he told me how, after purchasing and rehabilitating the D. T. F. railroad, and he declared that application of the same methods would make all "stuck" railroads well.
"We cut freight and passenger rates 20 per cent. and we boosted wages," said Ford. "And it won't take long to reduce the rates 50 per cent."
All Could Cut
"All railroads could cut their rates in half. We have shown them how. But I'm afraid they won't do it."
"Under Wall street management the only way they know to make money is higher railroad rates—which is the poorest way in the world to get business."

Ford said he "wasn't a magician" and "didn't wield a magic wand." This is his recipe:
"Keep the railroad busy and the equipment busy and all the men on it busy."
"On the D. T. & I. we are getting along fine—making money where the road never made money before, making it because the men are busy and their hearts are in their work."
"We eliminated waste and dead wood. All railroads can—and should—do the same thing."
Ford declared he found enough scrap along the D. T. & I. to pay for its purchase.
"What is the first thing you would do if you were given all the railroads to run?" I asked him.
"Slash rates, boost wages, let a lot of the men go," he replied. "I'd let some of the men go back to the farm—temporarily. They'd be of more use there."
Thinkers Needed
"There are too many men running the railroads who let somebody else do their thinking for them. We want men who can think for themselves."
"That's why I made my son, Edsel, president of the Ford Motor Company. He thinks for himself."
"Another thing is that too many men let titles spoil them. That's why I made myself president of the D. T. & I."
"I'm glad to say the title of president didn't spoil Edsel."
As a railroad president Ford receives season passes from other railroads. But he doesn't use them. They offer to haul his private car free. He always pays for it.
"As long as money is the medium of exchange," he said, "I believe it ought to be used. If I want something and I haven't got the money to buy

MISS ALMA S. OSTERBERG

Vacation doesn't mean mountain or lake shore, a hotel veranda and a world of gayety to Miss Alma S. Osterberg, Cleveland school teacher.

Rather it means a trip to the far north, so far along the coast of Newfoundland and to small villages that an ordinary atlas doesn't show the place—St. Barbe, Newfoundland. There, where daylight lasts from 3 in the morning to 11 at night, Miss Osterberg has organized a little school and has put play into the lives of the silent, serious children of those northern fisherfolk.

In the little colony Miss Osterberg is teacher, nurse, physician and sometimes even preacher. She has learned the rudiments of dentistry and even takes care of their teeth.

This year she had interested so many friends in the people of St. Barbe that when she left she took with her many gifts for them and was accompanied by 10 other volunteer workers, who have established themselves in the villages along the Labrador coast.

against me. I knew that if I went before the Bar association and failed to cross a "C" or dot an "L" it would be charged up to criminality.

Not Pertinent to Main Issue
This undoubtedly referred to Mr. Hurlburt's wishing Mr. Coakley to go before the Bar association. At this point Atty. Ranney for Tufts told the court that he thought this line of inquiry ought to be stopped. The judges, after consultation, ruled that it was not pertinent to the main issue, but they felt that if Mr. Hurlburt believed it might put things in a proper light it was permissible.

Mr. Hurlburt then continued examining Mr. Coakley as to interviews with the two had had together. Questioned by Hurlburt: "Did I tell you, Mr. Coakley, in an interview, that I believed Tufts was not a fit person to be district attorney?"

Q: "Did I tell you, Mr. Coakley, that Mr. Tufts ought to be removed?"

A: "Yes."

Q: "Did I tell you that I had sufficient evidence to remove him?"

A: "Not exactly. You said you thought that you might be able to get the evidence."

Coakley-Tufts Interview
Mr. Hurlburt then explained that he wanted to get from Coakley an account of an interview Coakley and Tufts had together at which Abrams was present. Abrams is a famous motion picture magnate who figured in the Mishawum Manor—"Brownie" Kennedy cases.

client evidence to remove him?"

Coakley-Tufts Interview
Mr. Hurlburt then explained that he wanted to get from Coakley an account of an interview Coakley and Tufts had together at which Abrams was present. Abrams is a famous motion picture magnate who figured in the Mishawum Manor—"Brownie" Kennedy cases.

Coakley said: "Yes, you did want this, but I did not give it to you, because I did not get the stenographic report of the interview." Mr. Coakley, Mr. Hurlburt stated, was tied up with District Attorney Tufts in several matters.

Opposes Term "Tied Up"
Attorney Ranney jumped to his feet and objected to the phrase, "tied up." He said moreover that Mr. Coakley was associated with the district attorney in only two cases, the Mishawum Manor case and the Munroe case.

"Well," said Hurlburt, "two cases are as good as a dozen." Hurlburt again asked for Coakley's check books and Attorney-General Allen interpreted this question: "Will you give us the check books if you assure us that the Watch and Ward society will not get them?"

Chief Justice Rugg ruled that Mr. Coakley would not have to produce all his check books for four years. Hurlburt still tried to get them, however, and said: "Won't you take my assurance, Mr. Coakley, that the Watch and Ward society will not get your books?"

Calls Hurlburt Subordinate
"No, I will not take anyone's assurance—certainly not yours. You are only a subordinate to the attorney-general."

Although the state could not get all of Coakley's check books, they finally got an admission that he would bring in the books in three cases, the Stearns divorce case, the Mishawum Manor case and the Morrow case.

Questioned by Hurlburt: "What has been the relation between your office, Mr. Coakley, and Capt. Gordon, who was attached to Tufts' office?" Coakley said that Gordon had been to his office many times and had borrowed money from Mr. Shugrew. Before the cross-examination was finished, Atty. Gen. Allen again asked Coakley if he would bring additional check books.

Never Gave Tufts a Dollar
"No," said Mr. Coakley: "you don't expect me to promise to bring things to you which I would not bring to Mr. Hurlburt." Atty. Ranney then took the witness for a brief additional examination and said: "Out of the money obtained from Abrams, the movie magnate, did you ever pay one dollar to just Atty. Tufts?"

Answer: "No, neither directly nor indirectly."

Ranney said there has been some suggestion that Coakley protected auto cases in Suffolk county while Corcoran protected them in Middlesex county and he asked the witness about them. Mr. Coakley answered, "I never had an auto stealing case in my life." The witness then left the stand in order to go to his office and get papers desired by the state. He has been ordered to place them in the custody of the court and then who does this he will be further examined.

The news that he was to be on the stand and was to be cross-examined by Hurlburt brought crowds to court. The audience was practically restricted to lawyers and representatives of the press.

Denial By Tufts and Coakley
BOSTON, Aug. 3.—Specific denials by Dist. Atty. Nathan A. Tufts and Attorney Daniel H. Coakley were the reply of Tufts' counsel, presented to the supreme court yesterday, to

Quitting City's Clamor for Farm's Delight and Going Back to the Land in Style

By Newspaper Enterprise
EN ROUTE, New York to Idaho, Aug. 2.—Thirteen-year-old Muriel Scott has a job any kid would envy. She's the bugler of the motor caravan that is carrying 25 Brooklyn families to homesteads in Idaho. Muriel, dressed in khaki and a cow-girl hat, "blows up" the Argonauts in the morning and sounds "rays" at night as the modernized "forty-niners" progress on their six-weeks' trip to Idaho.

Camping along the road each night, the caravan is a huge frolic in the eyes of the eleven children between 7 and 15. Half a dozen others under 7 and 15. Including the youngest pioneer, six-months-old Mary Cecilia Walsh—can't quite understand what it's all about, except that it's a lot more fun than living in Brooklyn.

Commander's Daughter
Bugler Muriel is the daughter of William A. Scott, commander-in-chief of the caravan. She sits beside him on the front seat of his auto, which leads the procession of cars. Each car has a trailer that carries more comfort than all the early-day "prairie schooners" put together.

Scott, who is tall and very thin and bald-headed, is the man who conceived the idea of collecting all the dissatisfied city folk he could find and piloting them to new homes on a tract of irrigated government land—40 acres per family—near Buhl, Idaho.

Strapped to the side of Scott's car is a Winchester rifle presented to him just before the caravan left Brooklyn. The rifle is silver mounted and is a duplicate of the one carried by the late William F. Cody (Buffalo Bill).

"We're getting back to the land," explained Scott. "All of us, especially the children, will be healthier and happier out in the open. I'm through with city life."

Not everybody, however, left the city without a pang. Mrs. Arthur Vermeire, mother of four children, turned around and look one last look at Brooklyn. But, unlike Lot's wife, she wasn't turned to salt—only to salty tears.

"I loved Brooklyn with all its racket," she said. "I only hope I'll love Idaho as well."

Far more enthusiastic was Peter A. Vanderput, who presented his butcher shop to his son, and started out to grow alfalfa with "all bridges burned behind him."

The company will form a colony with homes clustered together to provide social evenings when each day's work out on the farms is done.

NEW YORK SEES DOUBLE WEDDING OF JAPANESE

MOTOR NOTES

Scotch Company Has Made Carburetor for Alcohol

A Scotch company has experimented with alcohol as a motor fuel with the result that an alcohol carburetor has been introduced.

This carburetor, called a D. C. L., has a float chamber of ordinary type. But the regular jet is replaced with an opening controlled by a needle valve.

The interesting part of this carburetor is that hot air must be introduced into the mixing chamber. For this purpose, the chamber is enclosed in an asbestos lining to conserve the heat. As the engine speeds up, cooler air may be sent through.

When the engine is cold, the carburetor must be heated before the fuel will vaporize. This is done by a coil of electric wire around the fuel line.

In a comparison test of the D. C. L. carburetor with alcohol and an ordinary one with gasoline, the inventor says, the D. C. L. proved itself more economical. A car that went 25 miles on a gallon of gasoline was driven 25 miles on a gallon of alcohol fuel through the D. C. L. carburetor.

The use of alcohol as a motor fuel, say experts, may even go so far as to exceed its consumption in liquor form before the days of the drought. And it is expected to be cheaper than gasoline, too.

APPROVE BONUS FOR MISSOURI SOLDIERS

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 3.—Approval of a cash bonus for Missourians who served in the world war, submission to a general vote of a proposal for a constitutional convention, and the use of automobile license fees to pay interest on $60,000,000 in road improvement bonds, was indicated today by incomplete unofficial returns from yesterday's special election. A proposed change in the constitution allowing women to hold all state offices, apparently was in doubt.

IN THE POLICE COURT

Billerica Youth Charged With Larceny of Auto Held for Hearing

A brief docket engaged the attention of Judge Thos. J. Enright in the police court this morning. Henry Muller, co-defendant with John I. Maguire in a charge of stealing an automobile from John A. Greenleaf at Billerica July 30, appeared and was held for a hearing August 11. Both defendants are Billerica youths. Maguire was first taken into custody by Officer Livingston, and was before the court yesterday, being held in $500 bonds furnished by his parents. Subsequently came Muller's arrest.

Peter J. Allen, charged by his wife with threatening, was given six months' probation from a three months' house of correction sentence. He was ordered to let the woman alone, and to contribute to her support.

Three drunks were released by Mr. Michael David, acting probation officer in the absence of Mr. Slattery. One defendant drew six months' probation.

DAMAGE BY CLOUDBURST

Arkansas River Within Three Feet of Levee Top—Cities Above Pueblo, Flooded

PUEBLO, Colo., Aug. 3.—The Arkansas river in Pueblo was within three feet of the levee top here today as a result of cloudbursts yesterday. The Royal George and surrounding places above Canon City but danger of a new flood was believed passed. Canon City and Florence, both above Pueblo, were partly flooded by the high waters and considerable property damage was done.

The superintendent of the Arkansas Valley Light and Power Co. here announced that a cloudburst between Lima and Fish Lake sent the St. Charles river over its banks and had washed out a highway bridge on the Santa Fe trail at the junction of the St. Charles and Arkansas rivers.

Prompt action of rescue parties in boats prevented loss of life at Canon City when a 14-foot wall of water swept down the Arkansas river out of the Royal Gorge. A number of residences were destroyed, manufacturing plants were damaged and the city water system was put out of commission.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS AT K. OF C. CONVENTION

LICENSE BOARD HOLDS MEETING

Considerable routine business was transacted by the license commission at its weekly meeting held last evening. A conference was held with one hawker and peddler charged with giving short measure. Ragolsky was given leave to withdraw a license application made by him.

SAYS COST WILL NOT MUCH EXCEED ESTIMATE

Commissioner of Public Buildings George N. Marchand denied today that the cost of rebuilding the Morey school would greatly exceed the original estimate. He said that the original estimate for the school had been $225,000 and that when all of the bills had been paid not more than $240,000 would have been expended. An unexpected expense was incurred in paying for the blasting out of a ledge of rock.

LEGION DELEGATES SAIL

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—With the flag of the national commander of the American legion flying at her masthead, and more than 250 members of that organization on board, the American passenger steamship George Washington sails today for Cherbourg and Bremen. The Legioners will disembark at the first port, whence they will go to visit the battlefields on which for more than a year they fought against the forces of the German empire. To many of them it will be the first visit to the scene of conflict since they left to rhyme, uniformed members of a victorious army.

The Legion party, headed by National Commander John G. Emery and includes men from every state of the Union.

Cable advices from Cherbourg said that the veterans will be officially received there by representatives of the French government. A special detail of American soldiers from the forces now in Germany will be on hand to welcome their former comrades.

Tourists in Paris and Marshal Foch will join them in Eligny where a monument erected by the citizens of liberated Lorraine will be unveiled as a token of esteem to America.

"We are making this pilgrimage," said National Commander Emery, "as a proof that the war alliance of America and France was based on righteous concepts. More than two years have passed since we fought side by side. Many friendships have been broken in that time, many agreements and associations repudiated, but the friendship it endures because it rests on something more binding than the formal agreements of statesmen. It is based on a common understanding and a oneness of aspiration that lives deep in the hearts of the two great democratic peoples."

CONSIDER R. R. WAGE CUTS AND CONDITIONS

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—The questions and working conditions were taken up at a conference here today between heads of the four big railroad brotherhoods, the Switchmen's Union of North America, and a committee of the Association of Railway Executives.

The meeting which was requested by the brotherhoods, is said to have been asked to "clearly place the railroad on record as to whether they will request further decreases in wages and the elimination of time and one-half for overtime."

After today's conference, the brotherhoods which then will take a referendum vote on the 12 per cent wage reduction recommended by the United States labor board on July 1.

French Bond Issue Successful

PARIS, Aug. 3.—Subscriptions of nearly 5,500,000,000 francs have been received by the government for the issue of 6 per cent treasury bonds, which will mature in two years, says the Journal. The newspaper declares that the bond issue has been successful.

Allies Warn Greece Against Advance

LONDON, Aug. 3.—(By the Associated Press)—The allies have warned Greece that an advance on Constantinople by her troops, which now are engaged in war with the Turkish nationalists, will not be tolerated, it was authoritatively stated here today. No ground exists however, it is added, for believing that Greece contemplates any such advance, which would bring her into conflict with the allied army of occupation. Reports from Athens that Great Britain favors a Greek advance on Constantinople, were characterized as absurd—the exact reverse of the truth. Great Britain, it was declared, is maintaining strict neutrality between Turkey and Greece.

Bishop O'Leary Tendered Reception

D., bishop of Manchester diocese and about 150 of the diocesan clergy at St. Joseph's orphanage today. Following the reception a banquet was served by the Sister of Mercy. The Manchester bishop and clergy presented to the new Springfield bishop a magnificent set of pontifical insignia, including crozier, pontifical pectoral cross, bishop's pectoral cross, bishop's pontifical ring, bishop's ring, gold chain and pontifical cord. All are gold with amethyst and diamond settings. Rev. Matthew Cramer of Nashua made the presentation and Rev. T. J. E. ## GENERAL MANAGER DOES ANY OLD THING

Miss Mary Bartlett is general manager of a dairy at Savannah, Ga. Every day she supervises the handling of at least 400 gallons of milk and as many pounds of butter, as well as keeping an eye on the stock in their pastures and some very fine roses which bloom just outside the window of her office.

"Trust a woman to have something growing and beautiful around her place of business," says Miss Bartlett. "I believe that the more women invade the business world, the more attractive the setting for business is going to become. Even a dairy-woman loves the beautiful!"

In spite of the fact that Miss Bartlett's title is that of general manager, she does "anything there is to do." "If our regular clerks are out, I sell milk and if the checkers are not about, I check the drivers." "Woman's home training has made her willing to do the thing at hand, and that quality is what has made her progress in the business world speedy and a thing of comparative ease," says Miss Bartlett.

Miss Bartlett has been connected with the dairy business for 15 years.

Cellar of Paige St. Shoe Store

A cellar fire which gave the firemen considerable trouble started shortly after 11 o'clock last night in the cellar of the Paige Shoe Store Co. in Paige street, near Bridge, and continued for upwards of one hour before it was finally subdued. In the course of the fire, District Chief Saunders and two or three other men were overcome by smoke and had to be sent to their homes. Harry Simpson, another fireman, had his leg injured while fighting the blaze and was also removed to his home.

When the fire was first noticed the smoke was coming from the coal office of E. A. Wilson and entrance was forced into this place, but when they investigated, the firemen found that it was in the adjoining cellar. A second entrance was forced into the latter place and after considerable difficulty the firemen located the blaze. Once this was definitely established there was little fear for the fire spreading, and after half an hour's concentrated work it was extinguished. The damage was not very great.

An amusing feature in connection with the fire came when a line of hose which was being laid into the cellar burst on the sidewalk in front of the store and sent streams of water several yards on each side, scattering the large crowd in all directions and drenching many to the skin. A second coupling also broke before the firemen succeeded in sending a stream into the cellar.

LETS OUT SECRET

Mrs. Edison Says Husband is
Some Sleeper

BY EDWARD THIERRY

Copyright, 1921, by The Lowell Sun
IN CAMP, via Oakland, Md., Aug.
2.—"Do you believe Thomas Edison sleeps only four hours a night?"
That question has been asked more often than any other concerning the world's greatest inventor—and never answered till today.

But now I have the straight of it from none other than Mrs. Edison herself, who has just explained to me her husband's theory and system of sleep.

Edison does sleep only four hours a night, and sometimes less than that—when he's working.

But when he plays and relaxes, he catches up in sleep. He sleeps at night and he naps through the day—seven hours, ten hours, sometimes a great deal more.

Heats Scientifically

"Mr. Edison takes his rest scientifically," said Mrs. Edison. "When he works he works hard and works long hours. When he sleeps he sleeps just as hard."

"This is the time when he sleeps—here in camp. Another time is when we go to our winter home at Fort Myers, on the west coast of Florida.
"Down there he almost hibernates, and with sleep he rebuilds himself against another rigorous spell of work. We have hammocks all around the house. Mr. Edison goes from one hammock to another, sleeping his way around the house, moving on as

Naps Between Naps

"Sometimes at night he may sleep only a few hours. But when he is back close to nature—in the trees and woods and creeks he loves—he sleeps during the day."

"He goes to sleep in a chair, on the ground or in a hammock. He has a most peculiar power of dropping into a heavy slumber instantly and in a short time rousing for a sort of intermission."

"For a while he reads, and then sleeps—as for a while, and then drops off—cats, and then naps."

He even napped in a chair while Bishop W. F. Anderson conducted Sunday services.

"If I didn't know how deaf Mr.

Edison is," smiled Bishop Anderson.

"I might charge myself with preaching him to sleep!"

Mrs. Edison laughed and said:

"It is one of Mr. Edison's chief regrets that because of his poor hearing he cannot attend church services.
He used to try, but he couldn't hear a word that was said."

"Nevertheless his every instinct is Christian."

"He is not sensitive about his deafness, as so many are. He thinks deafness has its compensations. He says he can work better—and besides so many people say things that aren't worth hearing."

THE STRAND

"The Blazing Trail," Frank Mayo's most recent Universal photodrama, is to be shown at The Strand Theatre the last half of the present week, beginning tomorrow. It will have an especially fitting presentation, and as it holds series of mountain life in actual mountain settings it is easily seen that it stands out as a headliner among headlines.

The picture takes up the thread of a young physician's life, he having exhausted his brain power through over-study to find a blood specific. In order that he may recover from the strain he has subjected himself to, he goes down into the Blue Ridge mountains and there engages in work anew.

He regains his mental strength, and finds himself quite thoroughly inoculated with the love germ. It certainly does work havoc with his heart, but it doesn't hurt his head. In the presented company is an exceedingly equable cast, from Mr. Mayo, the Lillian Rich, Mary Philbin, Ray Ripley, Verne Winters, Bert Sprague, Madge
Hunt and Helen Gilmore have exceptionally good parts. Ripley will be called the most fascinating villain in the movies is exceedingly well cast.

Mabel Normand, the darling of all those who like laughter, will appear in a goldwyn picture of the latest cinema, called "What Happened to Rosa."
The distance between the carefree, romantic days of old Spain and the drugging, dragging hours of the bas-ment shop girl, lies between Mayme Ladd and Rosa Alvarez, both parts being portrayed by Miss Normand. The transition from one to another makes a wonderfully compelling photoplay.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

Final performances of "A Wise Fool" with James Kirkwood in the leading role, will be given at the Merrimack Square theatre this evening. Tomorrow there will be the usual mid-weekly change of program.

The outstanding features for Thursday, Friday and Saturday will be "When Dawn Came," one of the most enthralling stories of modern life ever presented on the screen, and "Don't Call Me Little Girl," a pretty comedy, starring dainty Mary Miles Minter.

"Don't Call Me Little Girl" is a Mary Miles Minter production, with the young star wonderfully well cast in the role of "Jerry," the incorrigible tomboy whose juggling of three romances, her own, her aunt's and her mother's, forms a delicious horse-podgy of thoroughly enjoyable fun.

The star is supported by an unusual cast. Playing the lead role of Monty in a manner reminiscent of the part's best traditions is Jerome Patrick, the good looking leading man, who has appeared so successfully in recent motion pictures, notably "The Furnace," and "Her First Elopement."

As Aunt Joan, who has grown to be an old maid for too soon, Ruth Stonehouse shows the same cleverness which has brought her such fame in the past.
Edward Flanagan, of the well known vaudeville team of Flanagan and El-wards, gets splendid laughs from the role of Peter, the "safety first" lover.

"When Dawn Came," the other big feature for the first part of the week, combines high class society drama with the melodrama of the stunts. A comedy and the International News will complete the bill.

DISTRICT MEETING

Walter Perham acted as moderator at the meeting of the Chelmsford water district, which was held last evening in the Centre town hall. The warrant contained ten articles and all were disposed of in brief time. Article one called for the election of a moderator. Mr. Perham being the choice of the assembly. Articles two and three called for the rescinding of the action taken at a meeting held May 24 when it was voted to extend the service in Dalton road. Both were adopted.

Under article four it was voted to extend the service in Dalton road, a distance of 430 feet to the site of the new building, and under article five the sum of $525 was borrowed to defray the expenses of this work. Article six called for the rescinding of a vote taken at the last meeting for the extension of the service in Dalton road from the residence of Karl M. Per-ham to the intersection of North road.

The article was defeated.

Under article seven it was unanimously voted to extend the service about 625 feet in Perham street at or about the intersection of Billerica road to the residence of George A.

Jones, and on Grove St. from a point at or about the intersection of Per-ham street to the residence of Hans sen, about 325 feet. To defray the expense of the same the treasurer was authorized to borrow a sum of money not to exceed $1450. It was unanimously voted under article nine that the district extend its service about 700 feet in Sylvan Avenue from a point at or about the intersection of the Lowell road in support of this article a letter was read from George W. Day, guaranteeing three service connections. To defray the expense of this work the treasurer was unanimously authorized to borrow a sum of money not to exceed $1250. The meeting was then adjourned.

CHINA SEES GATEWAY TO LASTING PEACE

BY NORRIS QUINN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—Official China sees in President Harding's November conference on disarmament and far eastern affairs an open gateway to lasting peace and, with peace, the opportunity to develop Chinese national resources.

That is the view of Sao-Ke Alfred Sze, Chinese minister to the United States, who gave to The Sun correspondent his first public statement in connection with the coming conference.

Sze is expected to be one of China's delegates to the conference. "Amity to all; enmity toward none—these six words summarize the policy of the Chinese at the conference," Sze said. "Further than that, I can say nothing of China's program, for I do not believe any definite program has been decided on."

"China's greatest need is a durable peace. My country will cooperate to the utmost in securing that."

"China wants a chance to develop its natural resources and its foreign trade. It has been hampered by the uncertainty of far eastern affairs."

The much-mooted Anglo-Japanese treaty, Sze hinted, might come before the conference when discussion turns to far eastern matters.

The Anglo-Japanese alliance, he pointed out, "has a great deal to do with China, but China has nothing to do with it."

"Here is an agreement," Sze said, "vitally affecting China, but China has not even been consulted in its making. Any nation would resent such treatment."

"The preservation of peace in the

China's Interest

that nation will be interested in these problems:

Return of Shantung by Japan to China.

Japanese interests in Manchuria.

Differences between the government at Peking and the revolutionary regime at Canton will not affect dealings at the conference. This is said to be purely an internal problem.

board are: Annabell V. Keyes, Jennie T. Frawley, Mary J. Campbell, Elsie E. Perron, Minnie Pihl, and Anna H. Rouine, while those named with loss of their positions include: Helen G. Lyons, Bridget V. O'Connell, Katherine G. Dewire and Lucy Desmond.

While no formal action was taken by the body relative to the status of the last four, unless at Friday evening's conference with their representatives then, none apparently impossible, they seem certain to be thrown out of their employment as teachers of the city of Lowell. Mr. Bergeron called attention during the meeting to the fact that any arrangement which cared for them would work grave injustice on others ahead of them on the list.

Hon. James E. O'Donnell, speaking for one of the girls, declared that he had a plan of some sort in his mind, but was not prepared to state it at the gathering.

Mr. Molloy, at one point in the session, remarked that the situation would be somewhat altered by Friday, as he intended in the interim to place the case in the hands of the proper law officers.

Mr. Delaney, in calling the meeting to order, stated that it was a special one held to give the chairman an opportunity to answer a prepared statement made by the superintendent of schools at the last session of the board.

He also observed that he had a set of plans on his desk (exhibiting these) and mentioned that the commissioner of public buildings had requested action on these at the meeting.

The plans, which were of a new school for the Highlands, gained their last recognition at this point, for the rocks' red glare and bombs bursting in air apparently wiped them out of all memories.

Amid the verbal fray of those speaking formally, and the murmurs and other expressions of pleasure or displeasure of the spectators, the plans peacefully sank to obscurity, and the gathering adjourned without discussing them.

Mr. Delaney's Statement

The battle began a moment after Mr. Delaney's first utterance, Mr. Bergeron arising to demand a temporary chairman. He said that Mr. Delaney, as an interested party in the subject of the meeting, could not rightly hold the chair.

Mr. Delaney, however, took issue with this view, which proved the opening gun in a conflict only ended by submission to the suggestion first advanced by Mr. Bergeron. However, at the time the chairman declined to be unseated, explaining that he merely intended to read a statement, not to participate in the voting.

He then produced the following statement, which he read aloud in animated tones, afterwards distributing copies to the press.

To the members of the Lowell school committee:

Gentlemen: At our last regular meeting, Tuesday, July 20, 1921, Mr. Hugh J. Molloy, superintendent of schools, read a very carefully prepared statement in which he called to the attention of the committee certain alleged irregularities, or as he termed it, a wrong election of permanent substitutes on February 17, 1921.

To say that his statement came as a surprise to me is putting it very mildly, and not daring to answer the learned gentleman, in my own language, I requested and obtained from the committee a continuance of one week to make my reply.

It is true, as he says, in his statement, that we did have an election of permanent substitute teachers on the evening of February 17, 1921, but he makes a deliberately false statement when he says he did not know anything about it until next morning.

I wish to call the attention of the committee that I was in consultation with Mr. Molloy at his residence on the evening of February 17, 1921, between the hours of 6:30 and 7:30. The business agent of the department will corroborate this assertion that the agent drove me from my home to Mr. Molloy's residence and left me there, going to his home on Chestnut street, to have supper; that afterwards the agent returned and drove me from Mr. Molloy's residence to the school committee room at city hall.

(This is in reply to Mr. Molloy's statement that he was not consulted and knew nothing of the matter until he read the newspaper account of the meeting.) Mr. Molloy knew all about the list and the proposed election of substitute teachers. In that it was for the express purpose of seeking his advice that I went to his house. Later Mr. Molloy assigned these very teachers to schools. I did receive the list in question and had that list with me when I consulted Mr. Molloy at his home, and that paper was on my desk on the night of the meeting, open to the inspection of the entire board.

The missing list was left, by me, with all the other papers on my desk at the close of the meeting, and that was the last time I saw it. The school board all went out together that night, and the business agent drove us to our homes. The first request for the paper, that I heard, was at least four months after the meeting, although Mr. Molloy was in active control of the department practically every day for four months. If not more, after the election, I attached no importance to the paper, as it was only used as a memorandum, at that meeting, and was practically of no account after July—there being a new list.

The school board has never adopted any rules since I have been a member.

How Old Are You By Your Hair?

You may be only thirty, but if bald-headed, gray, or your hair is brittle, scraggly and ugly-looking, people will surely take you to be much older.

If you want a lot of good-looking hair the roots must be immediately vitified and kept properly nourished. To do this quickly and safely, get from your druggist a bottle of Parisian sage. A little attention now will insure plenty of beautiful hair for years to come.

Parisian sage is guaranteed to keep away all dandruff, stop scalp itch and falling hair and stimulate a new growth, or money refunded. It's in great demand by discriminating women because it makes the hair soft, lustrous, easy to arrange attractively and appear much heavier than it really is.

Parisian sage is easy to use, not sticky and daintily perfumed—an aniseptic, clean liquid that supplies all hair needs—Adv.

Although efforts have been made to have rules adopted.

Concerning the examinations and method, Mr. Molloy has repeatedly informed the board that he sent only the examination papers, with their number and address of the parties, examined here in Lowell, in his own private safe. That being so, Mr. Molloy during all this time must have had the names, numbers and addresses of all those examined.

Why the uproar about this missing paper, if he had all the information in his safe? Nobody in the world knew what the papers were until he disclosed them—he had the key to them all.

The Worcester party did not know the name of the applicants, or their address. The names and numbers remained with Mr. Molloy and if the missing paper is lost, how can Mr. Molloy give the numbers and the names and addresses on the last paper?

If he has a copy, why was it not produced at the next regular meeting of the board in the election of February 17, if there were any irregularities? The answer is, Mr. Molloy knew all the circumstances attending the election.

When Mr. Molloy attacks a member of the board in the manner that he did, there is but little room for him to talk respect for either moral or legal rights. My character for truth, sobriety and public conduct is known to all the people and I believe will compare at least favorably with that of our superintendent of schools.

If he wishes the reason for this statement I would be pleased to give him my information.

The trouble in this case is that there

WILL MOVE TO SYRACUSE

Lamson Company to Leave Lowell Soon as New Plant is Ready

The Lamson company, which has been doing business in this city for a great many years, occupying a large plant in Walker street, has purchased a large tract of land at Syracuse, N. Y., and will immediately start the erection of a large plant there.

As soon as the new mill is in readiness the machinery of the local plant will be moved to Syracuse. This information was given to The Sun this morning by William F. Merrill, president of the company, whose headquarters are in Boston.

The change will affect about 600 men, who are now working full time, but Mr. Merrill stated that as many of the Lowell employees who wish to go to Syracuse will be given employment.

When asked how soon the company planned to abandon the local plant, Mr. Merrill replied "perhaps this fall, next spring or next fall." He said it would all depend on how soon the Syracuse plant will be ready for occupancy.

Three reasons are being given for the change: First, that Lowell is too far away from the Great Lakes and that the close proximity of Syracuse to the lakes will make shipping much easier; second, the inability of the company to expand its plant in this city, and third, the inability of the company to combine its general offices in the vicinity of Lowell.

The Lamson company is a subsidiary of the American Pneumatic Service corporation, which manufactures cash carriers and industrial conveying devices. Sometime ago the officials of the company made an effort to increase its plant, but they failed as there was no desirable site available in the vicinity of its present quarters.

The chamber of commerce, as well as local real estate men, are said to have done their utmost to find a suitable site for the erection of a new plant, but they, too, were not successful. In the meantime the chamber of commerce of Syracuse got busy, with the result that a suitable tract of land was located and after all efforts in Lowell had failed, the company finally purchased the Syracuse land.

WOULD YOU WEAR 'EM?

Laugh if you must, says Paris, but you'll be wearing them yourself before long, on your afternoon strolls in town. It's a walking costume. And who, ask the Paris designers, can say a word against it, save that it is unusual? Isn't it more practical for walking than flopping skirts? Isn't it fetching? Then why not? Just the same we'll bet you a bottle of your favorite perfume against a Brazilian diamond ring that it will be many a day before women be-decked as here will be seen in large numbers in the U. S. A.

Fireworks at City Hall

It is too much politics being played in the school board for the best interests of our schools and the public service, and that is the reason that at the beginning of my present term of office I decided that it would be my last on the school board. It has been impossible for the school board to get existing conditions from the superintendent of schools, hence the necessity of calling a meeting of all the masters and principals of all our public schools last June, to learn of the conditions in our schools, which was one of the reasons that Mr. Molloy became angry at the chairman. Time and again when wanting to know and get necessary information from the superintendent he could not be found, the answer being, "out of town." Repeatedly have I insisted that Mr. Molloy visit our schools more often, but never could I get satisfactory action. Many times have I asked Mr. Molloy to install some method of standardization so that the work of the different grades may be quickly ascertained, but this has been laughed at by the same Mr. Molloy.

These are a few of the reasons which are the actual cause of the trouble of the superintendent against your chairman. My constant effort has been for harmony, but owing to the conduct of Mr. Molloy I have been unable to obtain it. Neither his conduct, letter nor false statements has terrorized me the least.

I acted after consulting with Mr. Molloy; I acted after disclosing all the details to him and no one knows this better than the same Mr. Molloy.

Suggested Legal Advice

"Gentlemen, you have heard the statement. What is your pleasure?" concluded Mr. Delaney; whereupon Mr. Donnelly expressed himself to the effect that the board, in his opinion, should not venture further in this delicate matter without legal advice and assistance. He urged that all information and papers be placed in the hands of the city solicitor, and that the board submit itself to his guidance.

Here Mr. Bergeron again reiterated his demand that a temporary chairman should be placed in the chair, and be moved that Mr. Markham be designated for this position. Once more, however, his efforts proved unavailing. Mr. Delaney stating that Mr. Donnelly's motion was already before the house. Mr. Bergeron was insistent. He said to Delaney, "I think you ought to step one side." Mr. Delaney merely indicated that all would be well at the proper time. He again assured Mr. Bergeron that he would not vote, but Mr. Bergeron resumed his seat with no sign of being mollified by these guarantees.

Temporary Chairman

Here came the final combat in the Homerite struggle to enthroned a temporary chairman and in it Mr. Delaney went down to defeat. The motion of Mr. Bergeron was finally put to the house, and Mr. Delaney, in marble tones, asked the secretary (Mr. Molloy) to call the roll. All, except Mr.

Markham, voted for the motion. Mr. Delaney set the seal on the proposition by also registering a yea vote. With Mr. Markham in the chair, Mr. Molloy was asked for the documentary evidence, including lists of those taking examinations June 26, 1920, and prior to that date. He explained that for 1919 and 1920 he had two papers bearing the names, examination numbers, and other data of those taking examinations. But for 1920 he had but one of such papers. Mr. Delaney inquired if he had twin papers for 1917 and 1918. "I can't say. It isn't necessary to keep these lists," replied the superintendent, Mr. Markham bearing him out.

Mr. Markham announced that he would now have the papers passed among the members. There was strong objection to this by Mr. Molloy, who indicated one paper and declared, "I don't want that one passed." "I'm going to allow it to be passed," was Mr. Markham's only response to the protest. Mr. Molloy now moved about with the papers, elucidating them to the individual board members. Mr. Donnelly said he supposed there was no possibility of mistake in the system employed by Mr. Molloy. "All the possibility in the world," opined Mr. Markham.

Calm Before Storm

"I presume," said Mr. Markham, "that the board has heard the statements and is acquainted with the papers." After some discussion and consultation of reports of meetings, relative to a little disagreement on a point of fact between the superintendent and Mr. Delaney, Mr. Bergeron moved the adoption of Mr. Molloy's recommendations that the six young women next to the eligible lists be appointed, and the four elected February 17 be dismissed. All was calm as Mr. Bergeron rose to make this motion; but it was the calm before the storm, which now broke in all its fury. Attorney Dennis J. Murphy, counsel for Miss Gertrude Lyons, one of the four in danger of dismissal, was first to speak. "I want to be heard," he declared, rising. Mr. Markham evinced a disinclination to entertain his request, on grounds of irregularity. Murmurs of "Public meeting, public meeting!" came from the spectators. Mr. Tierney, counsel for one of the four young women, was also upon his feet, but the hubbub somewhat died as Mr. Bergeron commented that this was a meeting, not a trial. "I'm satisfied that Mr. Molloy's statements are facts," he added.

Once again Mr. Donnelly proffered his suggestion that the board seek legal aid before proceeding further, this time putting it in form of a motion. On a roll call, the motion was declared defeated, Donnelly and Warner voting "Yes," Bergeron and Markham voting "No," and Delaney not voting. "Vote yes!" came in stentorian tones, evidently directed to Delaney, who asked a ruling that the tie mean "Yes." Markham said he would make no such ruling. Delaney then wished to doubt the vote. "You can ask for another roll call," came from the sidelines. "Certainly, I can ask for another roll call," repeated Mr. Delaney. All efforts to have Mr. Markham reconsider his stand, however, proved fruitless, and Mr. Molloy's recommendations were read, relative to the dismissals, and the corresponding elections. Mr. Bergeron, taking the floor, declared his sorrow for the young ladies who would lose their positions by the passing of the motion, but wanted to know "What about those who should have gained the positions?" There has been a wrong done, and it must be righted. I am satisfied that the report of Mr. Molloy is true."

Mr. Donnelly Again

Mr. Donnelly was again heard, counselling against too hot haste. If the motion was put through at once, he said, he would be inclined to vote for it. But he feared it might cost the city a pretty penny, and he favored that the meeting be thrown open to the representatives of the young ladies.

Hon. James E. O'Donnell asked that the board take a recess, to hear from those interested in the cases of the four young ladies. He based his plea on courtesy. Mr. Molloy wished to speak, as superintendent of schools and as a citizen. "Not as a citizen," suddenly burst forth Mr. Murphy, "because you have denied that right to us."

Spectators Warned

About this point in the proceedings, the spectators began to become quite obstreperous, and Mr. Markham adjured the police officer who was present to eject all disturbers of the harmony of the session. He gave forth the view that a recess would be of no avail. Seemingly unawed by the injunction to the bluecoat, a spectator ejaculated in loud tones, "Got it all fixed?"

"The future of these four young ladies is involved," pleaded Mr. O'Donnell. "Can't they examine the evidence?" Mr. Markham finally moved a recess, and the motion was carried. Mr. Murphy took the floor, and after felicitating the board upon its action in allowing informal discussion, said that the body would be making itself ridiculous if it passed the superintendent's recommendations and five minutes afterwards rescinded its action. The board, he declared, had evidently lost sight of the fact that it was not only determining a question of fact, but depriving young women of jobs to which they were, at least prima facie, legally elected. He asserted that they should not be so without substantial reason, after their long and costly preparations for their present vocation. He told of his client, Miss Gertrude Lyons, holding a responsible position in the Lexington public schools, at $1300. She wished, however, to locate in her home town, and applied. Mr. Molloy notified her of her election here, and she told him she would have to give a month's notice at Lexington. He informed her then that she should give a month's notice. Lexington offered her a $200 increase to remain, but she declined this opportunity. Mr. Murphy asked if it were fair to place a black mark against her record throughout the Commonwealth. She is next on the list, said Mr. Murphy, and if the board can take six new teachers it can take seven. He stressed the number of her recommendations, saying that everyone she had worked under has been glad to testify to her efficiency and faithfulness.

Mr. Tierney then arose and said: "This is an unusual situation. I won't characterize it otherwise. I appreciate the position that the board is in, and the position of the young ladies. I have no doubt that Mr. Molloy believes all that he submitted to be facts." Mr. Tierney added that he thought there was much merit in the suggestion of having the city solicitor to bid. He quite plainly warned the board that "if this vote is adopted, I see only a resort to the courts. I say candidly that it will be done, and the whole matter opened up." Mr. Tierney suggested a ten day delay, which "might clear the atmosphere." He added, "I know you all wish to deal justly. But you must be certain that you deal legally."

How About the Others?

"But what," exclaimed Mr. Bergeron, "about the others, if we take care of these four? If we help these four, we are doing an injustice to my clients. If my suggestion can be made as to how we can adjust matters, of course I shall be glad. But I can't see how it might be done. These other girls can sue the board as well as these four. If they want to sue we can't stop them." Mr. Markham suggested then that those who should have been given the positions, according to Mr. Molloy's testimony and evidence, should be elected, but that action on dismissing those allegedly selected wrongfully be referred. Mr. Markham and others seemed to feel that a postponement of action for a conference would leave matters in the same position. "They won't be in the same position," interjected the superintendent, "because I intend to put the matter in the hands of law officers before that time."

Ugly Word Passed

During this discussion, Mr. Delaney arose and made an impassioned address in which he gave the lie direct to Mr. Molloy. "He lies" and "He's a liar," flowed from the chairman's lips in excited tones. "It's all right for him to say that's right. Who doubts my word? But I maintain that his paper is not genuine. What is to prevent him from going into his office and putting his own numbers on it? My veracity is as good as his. I'll stake against his. I defy anyone to say I've ever done anything not upright. Can the superintendent say the same?" "I wish to say only this," began Mr. Molloy, but Delaney interrupted, objecting to any statement on the superintendent's part. "I'm not saying anything to you, sir," frigidly returned Molloy.

The motion was now put that the six young women believed wrongly deprived of positions be elected permanent substitutes and immediately afterwards elected teachers in the primary schools.

A motion now went through for a public conference with the representatives of the young ladies elected in February, and an adjournment was taken.

WHY BETTER STREETS?

There is one class of men and women in Lowell that will surely vote for contract work at the special election next Tuesday inasmuch as the change would furnish the only effective means under present conditions of securing better streets.

No class of citizens has suffered more from bad streets than the owners of automobiles and motor trucks. It is an acknowledged fact that an automobile driven with reasonable regularity through the streets of Lowell wears out very rapidly and costs great deal for repairs. Repair shops understand the effect of the rough streets upon automobiles in causing the machinery to get out of order much more quickly than would be the case on reasonably good streets. A ride over some of the worst streets is nothing more than a series of jounces that are certainly very unpleasant to the occupants of the vehicle.

It is expected, therefore, that every person who owns an automobile or a motor truck in Lowell, will go to the polls next Tuesday and bring with them as many friends as they can to vote for the construction of streets by contract. This is a duty that the auto owners owe to themselves as well as to the city.

Another class that may be relied upon to favor contract work on streets in the interest of economy is made up of the taxpayers. They have never complained of large expenditures when they found that the city was getting its money's worth; but they do object to the waste and extravagance that has prevailed in the street department and of the very unsatisfactory results that have been shown for the money expended. When they find that block paving can be laid for one-half what it costs when done by the street department, they may be excused if they enter a protest; and nowhere will their protest have such effect in bringing about reform, as if registered at the polls next Tuesday. Every vote cast there will be a protest against the present methods and in favor of a change that will give us better streets at a reasonable cost and that will do the job within a reasonable time.

All that the people of Lowell ask is that this city shall be allowed to take advantage of the plain business methods adopted by other progressive cities in having new streets constructed and old streets reconstructed. The chamber of commerce in its very excellent advertisements has brought a great deal of valuable information to bear upon this whole subject and it has shown that in the majority of cities, street work has been done by contract at a price in some cases not more than one-third of what the price appears to be in Lowell as indicated by the total amount spent for paving in 1920 and the total number of yards paved.

Wherever business is done upon business principles, there must be a contract specifying the nature of the work, the price and the time allowed for its completion. To prevent a city from adopting this method of doing business in any department, would be to place an insuperable barrier to progress and put a premium upon extravagance in the expenditure of the people's money. Hence it is, that the property owners throughout the city will find it to their own interest to go to the polls next Tuesday and vote yes on the question of contract work on the streets. The man who is struggling to pay for his little home or who already owns a home, finds that the taxes have been nearly doubled during the past few years and in spite of this, one of the departments in part responsible for this state of affairs, comes out to assuage those who want a change, although without being able to offer any real argument in defense of the present system. If the figures put out by the chamber of commerce are not correct, there is time enough yet for the street department to give the figures thus far published by the proponents of the petition are taken from the auditor's books at city hall and are, therefore, official. We do not expect that they can be contradicted. They show that the paving cost has been about twice as much as it might be done for under proper direction and to put a stop to this extravagance the taxpayers, large and small, will doubtless take advantage of the opportunity to record their votes in favor of a different method.

THE VISCOUNT'S INVITATION

Viscount Bryce is here to tell us a great many things about our government that we did not know before. He is an able English diplomat who is here to convince us, among other things, that the American democracy will never attain its highest ideals until it retraces its steps and joins hands with England in working out a common destiny. Of course he is thinking only of our interests. He is getting a great opportunity to lay his views on various topics before the American public through his lectures before the Institute of Politics connected with Wellesley college.

Here is one of the things he said: "When one traverses after nightfall a dangerous mountain path, the man who knows the path must be followed, whatever the risks. He may miss his way, he may perhaps wish to lead you astray, but if you have no knowledge of your own, it is better to follow him rather than to grope in the dark among precipices."

"European powers have been groping in the dark for the last few years, and their relations to one another derive and since the war have been left to a few guides."

It is difficult to determine whether from that simile, he implies that as England is one of the guides and knows the mountain paths, the United States, which has been groping, should fall in line and follow her, or whether he means to intimate that the groping of the European nations offers the United States a great opportunity of leadership. Note that the subtlety of this diplomatic invitation. It is equally open to both interpretations.

THE VOTERS' DUTY

Next Tuesday will be the first time in which any referendum question came up at a special election in this city. It is, therefore, of considerable importance that the citizens should get out and register their preference

There is always a satisfaction in knowing that the result of an election reflects the will of the people; but if only a small vote be cast, the result will show only the preference of a smaller minority. If the business men and women of Lowell interest themselves in good government, they can have it, but if they go off on vacation and do not think it worth their while to return to vote, they will show the old spirit of indifference that has already done our city a vast amount of harm. Moreover, the people who neglect to do their duty as citizens are among the foremost to come out and criticize what they believe to be wrong in our city government. They forget that every individual citizen has a responsibility in promoting good government and in using the franchise for the best interests of the city and all its people.

HUGHES IS RIGHT

Secretary Hughes has gone Secretary Hoover one better in backing the latter's demand that Russia release all American prisoners before we help feed her starving millions.

"There can be no thought of better relations between America and Russia so long as Americans are held prisoners without warrant of law or grounds for their detention," is the straightforward shoulder way the secretary of state puts it.

The secretary is right in leaving nothing to the discretion of the Bolshevik leaders.

The secretary's course is not only right but necessary at this time when Trotsky is talking of war with other countries of Europe as a means of getting food. He has destroyed the Russian supply and now threatens to raid the neighboring nations to seize what they possess. Most of the other nations have barely what is necessary for their own needs; but the Bolsheviks do not consider justice or right when they want anything that is in the possession of others.

THE POLICEMAN'S GUN

The police officer who goes out on his beat with a revolver on his hip, never knows when he will have to use it. Some officers never have occasion to use their revolvers; but that is no reason why they should not be able to use them promptly and with accurate aim in case of necessity.

In Rhode Island, the other day, an officer ordered a passing automobile to stop, and as his command was not obeyed he fired after the vehicle, intending to send a bullet into one of the tires. Instead he sent it through the lungs of one of the passengers. He is now held on a charge of manslaughter. Possibly, had he been an expert shot, he might have been with in his rights in firing at the tire; but not being an expert, he took a murderous chance in firing after the auto. It is important that every officer should know when, where and how to use his revolver, even though he should never have occasion to use it. An officer who could hardly hit a load of hay at a hundred yards distance should not attempt feats of marksmanship that only an expert can perform.

DISARMAMENT CONFERENCE

Japan is opposed to the discussion of any unsettled or controversial questions at the proposed disarmament conference and is likely to insist upon being allowed freedom of expansion, which means that she will enter Manchuria, Siberia or some parts of China. She is opposed to bringing up the Yip or Shantung issues at the conference, which shows that she does not wish to enter into any arrangement that will limit her ambition to pass beyond her present boundaries whenever she decides that the time is opportune for so doing.

Apparently all the powers desire that the scope of the conference will be outlined in advance and Japan wants to keep it restricted to the single subject of armaments, or the agenda, as the matter is termed.

SAFER HIGHWAYS

Registrar Frank A. Goodwin is to be congratulated on the reduction in the number of deaths in auto accidents for the past month. There were 44 deaths during the month, of which 18 were children. In June there were 66, and July of 1920 had 52.

Commissioner John N. Cole of the state department of public works has appointed fifteen inspectors to enforce the automobile laws and regulations throughout the state but none of them will leave Lowell. It is hoped this step will aid Registrar Goodwin in driving the reckless drivers from the highways.

Candy prices have flopped in New York. One chain of candy stores has cut the prices 50 per cent, and acknowledges that they were making 50 per cent. profit. They are still making 150 per cent. That should serve as a hint for others to do likewise. Candy stores in this state still keep pretty close to war prices.

Apparently the late Cardinal Gibbons will have a worthy successor in Rt. Rev. M. J. Curley, the recent appointee to the see of Baltimore. He is a young man, distinguished by his learning and his zeal in the cause of religion.

Mrs. Mary O'Toole having been appointed judge of the district court in Washington, D. C., by the president will have an opportunity to display the legal talent for which she is justly famed. As trustee of a bank she gave proof of her business and legal acumen.

Don't grumble at the federal taxes that meet you at every turn of the road; you are helping the European nations to escape paying their just debts to us, although they are keen enough about collecting the last dollar that Germany owes them.

Plymouth can now start toward her quadricentennial rejoicing. She has had all the honors the nation could conveniently bestow upon her tercentenary observance. She had better try to expand a little before her next blowout.

The republicans are giving the tariff a rest while they tear down some of the war taxes and pile on others almost equally heavy, but resting on other shoulders.

The beauty of going to bed early is that you get out of harm's way.

Farm Power

The farmers are coming into their own in Canada and it is predicted that in the not far distant future they will control the government of the dominion. They already control in the province of Alberta and have just elected one of their own people premier of the province. He's an honest-to-goodness dirt farmer, too. Began life as a farm laborer and has worked at his trade ever since.

Next Thing to It

The wife of the profiteer was having great difficulty over the furnishing of the large house. She did not know the names of ordinary articles of furniture, and the more ornamental things completely puzzled her. One day a woman said to her: "Have you read Lamb's Tales?" She thought for a while, and then answered nervously, "No, but I've got a gray sheepskin rug."

The Tell Tale Hole

An artist, who was extremely shabby, was walking along the Boulevard when he saw a beautiful girl. He called him from the rear. She turned and saw a famous painter hurrying after him. Being much flattered, the artist said, with a touch of pride, "So, you recognized me, didn't you?" "Yes," replied the famous painter, with a malicious laugh. "I spied you through a hole in your coat."

A Man's Reputation

Chicago police went only in squads, heavily armed, when they sought "Terrible Tommy" O'Connor, wanted in connection with three murders and many robberies. They knew his reputation. A. B. Legg, Pullman porter, didn't want O'Connor, waving two guns, tried to hold O'Connor's car near the station. "So you recognized me, didn't you?" "Yes," replied the famous painter, with a malicious laugh. "I spied you through a hole in your coat."

Treacherous Judgment

A visitor in Kentucky came across that rare specimen, an unmarred colored man. The negro was a wonderfully person, not shiftless, but quite industrious, so the Northern man was curious and determined to find out why he had remained single. Uncle Jim, how does it happen that you are so opposed to matrimony?" The old fellow looked up with a grave face, but there was a twinkle in his eye as he replied: "Well, I ain't opposed to matrimony." "Well, why is it you have never married?" his inquirer continued. "Haven't you seen any one you liked?" "Loved, you say, but you see it's thisaway: I couldn't risk my judgment."

The Sultan Eats a Banana

Abdul Hamid clapped his hands. In the proverbial time of a moment, wearing the magnificent livery of the imperial household, stood before the sultan and hands folded before the sovereign, "Get me a banana," said Abdul Hamid. The negro raised his hands, covered his face to signify that he had received his command, and backed from the room. He re-entered, on a dish of gold (part of the historic plate of the House of Osman) that splinted with precious gems, he bore a solitary banana. "They are not ripe as yet," said Abdul, as he took the fruit. He peeled it and threw the skin on the plate. He bit off half. This he chewed with great difficulty, and periodically thumping his chest. "I don't believe in eating too much of an evening. I shan't sleep if I finish it," he said. You finish it, Hamid! Never waste the good thing we won which Allah has endowed us. The general, the sultan's son-in-law, bowing courteously, took the remaining half of the banana in his white-gloved hand and then, drawing himself up to his full height, clicked his lips together and proceeded to eat it, holding his head erect and taking care not to move his jaws too much. The negro withdrew and returned with a glass pitcher of water and a little basin of silver. The sultan put out his left hand over the basin and the slave poured water upon it. Abdul rubbed his fingers and then, taking from the negro's shoulder a napkin of fine finest Bruza silk, he dried his hands with it. —K. K. Ardasher, in Asia Magazine.

The Harvesters

The harvesters sweep northward a hundred thousand strong; The roads resound with laughter, the fields are filled with song; For earth now yields her increase to serve the needs of man, And in the yellow wheat fields are heard the Pipes of Pan.

The scorching wind scarce flutters the scattered prairie trees; The little clover meadows are thick with thirsty bees; But flocks, hot and dusty, upon the sun-baked soil, Find there the soul of gladness reserved for those who toil.

Behold them in the harvest, the army of the Lord! They lift no suken banner, they swing no gleaming sword. They wield a better weapon than Caesar ever had, With bodies strong and supple and spirits free and glad.

Then gather in their honor and fill the air with cheers, As they go sweeping northward, the Harvest Volunteers. Behind no desolation—no windrows of the dead— As spoil of their brave battle they bring the nation bread: C. B. HILTON, in Farm Life.

MAN ABOUT TOWN

John W. Daly, recently returned from Europe, tells a good story of his experience in Dublin soon after his arrival there on the Fourth of July.

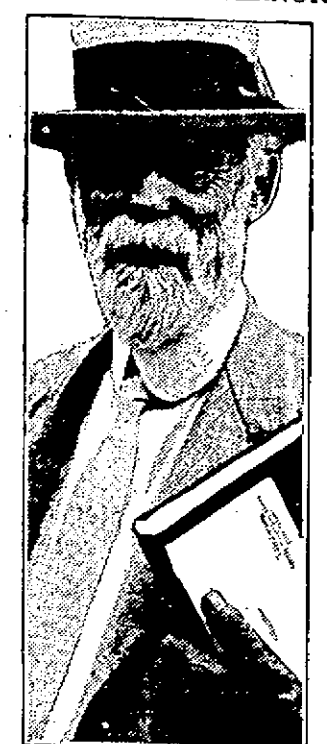

He was walking along one of the public streets with a couple of friends, and as the day was quite warm, he threw off his coat and carried it on his arm. So unusual is it there for a man to appear on the street without a coat that Mr. Daly attracted considerable attention and found that he was being followed by a number of men and boys who thought he was getting ready for a fight and that he might be on his way to lick somebody. One of his friends noticing the crowd following, suggested that he put on his coat in order not to attract so much attention. Mr. Daly said he didn't care whether they followed him or not so long as he felt it more comfortable not to wear his coat. He was going to carry it on his arm. They had gone but a short way towards the docks, when they spied two other coatless men walking on the opposite side of the street and at once recognized them as Americans. Mr. Daly crossed over to greet them and the crowd at once thought there was going to be a set-to, but was disappointed on seeing the men greet one another with a most cordial handshake.

NORTHBORO WOMAN WAS DESPONDENT

Thought She Would Never Be Well Again and Is Overjoyed by Restoration

"I'm just so thankful to get my health back," said Mrs. Frank Bertram, Northboro, Mass., "that I praise Tanlac to everybody I talk to. Why, since taking this medicine, I don't feel like I ever had indigestion and nervousness, although I had been troubled with it for ten years, and at the time I got Tanlac I was in such a run down condition that life was little pleasure to me. "My stomach was badly disordered, and for hours after eating I had such a bloated, stuffed up feeling I was in perfect misery. I had sharp pains in my chest and my heart acted so queerly I often wondered if one of these spells wouldn't take me away. At night I was so nervous I just had to have someone stay right with me all the time, for the least noise would frighten me out of my wits, and while in bed I just rolled and tossed, scarcely slept any, and spent the most wretched hours a person can spend. "Well, I had given up all hope of ever being well again; but I learned about Tanlac, and finally decided to try once more to regain my health. It helped me right from the first few doses, and now I feel just like a new person. I never have any distress after eating, and nights I sleep like a child. Tanlac is the best medicine I ever saw or heard of. It simply did wonders for me. "Tanlac is sold in Lowell by Green's drug store under the personal direction of a special Tanlac representative, by W. H. Deane, Concord, Mass.; Snow's Pharmacy, Concord, Mass.; and by the leading druggist in every town.—Adv.

DRILL LAST NIGHT AT STATE ARMOY

Last night the armory in Westford street was the scene of a snappy drill by the First Battalion, Headquarters and Combat train. This drill was the first one before the departure of the organization for camp at Camp Perkins, Barnstable, next Saturday morning.

The company, which is under the command of Capt. Gustafson, will spend two weeks with the field artillery where they will do practical work intended to supplement the theoretical practice that they have been getting all spring.

Capt. Gustafson reported last night that the morale of his organization was fine. The men seem to be in brilliant spirits and anxious to be off to camp. They have all been inoculated by army doctors and every preparation has been made for their health and comfort. When the company arrives at the camp, carrier pigeons will be dispatched to this city carrying messages for the mayor and other prominent officials.

Seven Former White Sox and Two Alleged Gamblers Stand Legally Cleared of Any Connection With Alleged Plot to Throw Series. Verdict Cheered.

CLAUDE WILLIAMS

JOE JACKSON

EDDIE CICOTTE

"BUCK" WEAVER

"CHICK" GANDIL

"HAP" FELSCH

"SWEDE" RISBERG

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—The seven former Chicago White Sox players and two alleged gamblers stood today legally cleared of any connection with the alleged conspiracy for the White Sox to throw the 1919 world series to Cincinnati. A jury last night having found them not guilty on the first ballot.

The verdict, freeing Buck Weaver, Happy Felsch, Chick Gandil, Joe Jackson, Claude Williams, Swede Risberg and Eddie Cicotte—the former players—and Carl Zerk of St. Louis and David Zeizer of Des Moines, was returned shortly before midnight amidst a scene of wild cheering, whistling and yelling from 500 spectators which would have seemed more natural in the bleachers of a baseball park than in the dignified courtroom of Judge Hugo Friend.

Friend's verdicts were vainly tried.

to establish order out of the pandemonium which broke loose despite the judge's previous request. The judge finally resorted to the demonstration of his authority by compelling the defendants to stand in line, the jury it had returned a just verdict.

While only nine of the 15 persons indicted in the baseball investigation were defendants when the case ended, it is believed that the baseball scandal has been forever swept from the courts so far as the courts of Cook county are concerned.

Others Under Indictment
Bill Burns was dismissed in return for a promise for the state, and during the trial the cases of Ben and Louis Lev of Kokomo, Ind., were dropped. Abe Attell, Fred Chase, Fred McMillan, Rachel Brown, of New York, J. J. Sullivan of Boston and Ben Franklin of St. Louis are still under indictment, but it was reported at the state's attorney's office today that their cases would be allowed to lapse.

The attorneys for the prosecution today had little to say of the case, but the defense pointed to the fact that only one ballot was taken by the jury as an absolute vindication of the defendants.

Today the jurors expressed surprise that the case had been allowed to drag through five weeks. Every juror declared that the defense would have received the same verdict had it sent the case to the jury without presenting any witnesses.

Weak Case by State
"We thought the state had presented a weak case," said one juror. "It depended entirely on Bill Burns and Burns did not make a favorable impression with any of us."

The jurors refused to say whether, in reaching their verdict they were of the opinion that there was no attempt to throw games in the 1919 world series or whether it was based on the contention that the state had failed to prove its charge that there was an attempt to defraud the public and various individuals through the throwing of the series.

Players Express Joy
The seven former players were jubilant over their acquittal. Joe Jackson, former star outfielder, was the only one who declared he was "through with organized baseball." The others said they would leave their baseball future in the hands of the officials of organized baseball.

"The jury could not have returned a fair verdict," said Jackson. "But I don't want to go back to organized baseball. I am through with it."

Weaver Seeks Old Position
"Everybody knew I had nothing to do with this so-called conspiracy," said Weaver. "I am not guilty and never had anything to do with any so-called conspiracy."

To Form Semi-Pro Team
"I never had any doubt about the verdict," said "Chick" Gandil, former first baseman who did not return to the White Sox in the 1920 season. "If it had not been for those two Haps, Bill Burns and Billy Maharg, I would have not been here. We are going to form a semi-professional team in Chicago and play a few games for the benefit of the wounded soldiers."

David Zeizer of Des Moines, alleged first lieutenant of Arnold Rothstein in the conspiracy, declared that he never knew Rothstein and had nothing to do with any conspiracy.

"I don't know why they brought me up here," said Carl Zerk of St. Louis, another defendant. "I never knew any of the other defendants until I met them in court."

Fred McMillan, former utility infielder, named in the case, but who was not on trial, was the victim of hard luck in the baseball trial. It became known today.

McMillan's third luck
After his indictment in the first investigation, McMillan came here from California at his own expense to stand trial.

After two weeks the case was dropped and McMillan, broke, borrowed money to get back to California and take a job as a sign painter.

Indicted in the second investigation, McMillan sent word that he could not afford the trip to Chicago, but would come for trial if the state paid his way. He received no answer and finally got together enough money for the trip.

McMillan arrived here the day after the trial began—a fact not known until today. He was too late to go on trial, and returned to California. His former teammates believe that this one day's delay prevented McMillan from sharing in the verdict of not guilty, although it is not believed that the state will ever press the indictment against him.

Jurors and Players Celebrate
CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—In a little Italian restaurant on Chicago's West Side, early today, the former White Sox players, indicted in the baseball scandal, accidentally met the 12 jurors who last night found them not guilty of the charges brought by the state, and the 12 jurors of facts in the case joined with the men whose fate had been in their hands for five weeks in a celebration that did not end until sunrise.

The jurors went to the restaurant for a farewell dinner before being permitted to return to their homes. The players and their attorneys went for the same purpose. The two parties soon discovered each other in their hands for five weeks in a celebration that did not end until sunrise.

If this jury could decide whether the acquitted players would be permitted to return to organized baseball, there would be no doubt of a favorable verdict for each of the 12 went to the players as they departed and expressed a desire to see them on a major league team again.

Eddie Cicotte drew particular attention from the jurors, for it was Cicotte who caught most of the state's fire in the trial. One of them grasping him by the hand said:

"Eddie, we were talking the other night about you and I want you to know that every man on this jury hopes that the next time he sees you, you'll be in the center of the diamond putting out strikes."

Centralvilles Defeat Gillespies and Get Next to the Twilight League Championship

Last evening on the South common the Centralvilles soundly trounced the Gillespies and thereby made themselves practically certain of the Twilight league championship.

The score was 5 to 0, but the game was not so one-sided as the figures would seem to indicate for up until the sixth when Ray Foye knocked a home run with two on there was imminent danger that the Gillespies might tie the score. After the sixth, however, their hopes were dashed.

Wheeler, a veteran of many seasons active service, was on the mound for the winners and he pitched a wonderful game of ball. He seemed to be adept at placing the ball where the batter was weakest and time and time again he proved that he was familiar with all the little weaknesses of the men who faced him. His arm was better, his head was better, and the combination spelled victory for his team.

Charlie Bird pitched for the Gillespies and he fooled the opponents in the first five innings when they fooled him. His slow ball was the best delivery that he had.

The first scoring was done by Centralville in the fourth. Cawley and Walter Foye singled. Foye went out on a beautiful sacrifice to Bird, and then Lynch came through with a two bagger to left, scoring Cawley and Foye. A Foye grand slam out and Bradbury lifted a fly to Adams. Score, 2-0.

In the sixth, Centralville got three more. W. Foye singled to left. Foye reached first on an error by Wheeler. Then Foye came to bat and knocked a sizzler to center which took a bad bound just as O'Hare was about to scoop it up. The result was a home run. Bradbury singled, but was out at second on Wheeler's grounder to Brozman. The score: CENTRALVILLES

GOLF AMATEURS ONE UP ON PROFESSIONALS

With a large crowd looking on, Fred W. Wright, Jr., and Parker Schofield, amateurs, finished one up on Jim Hendry and Eddie Keefe, professionals, of the Nashua and Longmeadow country clubs respectively in a match on the Andover street course yesterday afternoon. Schofield was put in at the last moment as a substitute for Jesse Guilford who could not come to Lowell.

It was a comfortable day for golf although the lowering clouds about starting time caused some apprehension for a few moments. The match was a close one at all times and the prize was ahead with a lead of two up, but at the next hole, Wright and Schofield each took one apiece evening the score.

Some very good golf was displayed during the afternoon. The contest between Wright and Hendry was a close one all the way but Schofield had an advantage on his opponent throughout the play whereas the other man plainly displayed the fact that he was nervous.

Previous to the match there was an informal dinner at the Washington club to the golfers and their friends. The match was staged under the direction of Charles T. McKenzie assisted by Henry Farrell referee, and John M. O'Donoghue, announcer.

Medal score for the 18 holes was as follows:

FIREMEN'S TEAM TO PLAY GLOUCESTER MONDAY

The first shift ball team of the Lowell fire department is going to Gloucester for revenge for the defeat handed them in the second shift game earlier in the season. An outing to the "fish town" is planned for next Monday, with the big feature on the program to be a diamond clash. The Gloucester team is a hummer, being composed of many former navy and college stars, and the local team, realizing that it has a hard job on its hands to halt the onrushes of the Gloucesterites, in preparation for a stiff battle Manager Kenneth and Capt. Fahs have announced a practice session to be held on the South common next Saturday morning at 9 o'clock, when plans to combat the opponents will be mapped out. The Lowell team will make the journey to Gloucester and a large truck and several motor cars have been chartered for the occasion. The Lowell team will leave the station at Middle street, next Monday morning at 9 o'clock.

Now that the hot spell has apparently ended, the first shift team plans a number of games, and will be ready to do battle against the best in the state after next week.

BAY STATE CIRCUIT Canadian Mare Wins Feature Race at Worcester

WORCESTER, Aug. 3.—Straight heats decided the winners of the three races on the opening day's program of the Bay State Circuit at Greendale yesterday. Anokla, the entry of Stony Mend farm at Concord, was quite a handy winner in the 2:30 pace. Trotting stake was easy for the Canadian mare Grace Dawn. She led from wire to wire after the first heat. Tyson, with Chovella, made the race for her in the last two heats.

Any took the first two heats of the 2:16 pace handsily enough, but in the third Jack Kingsley, with Gamie G. hurried her a bit. The race in this heat was for second money, Bruse, with D. M. B., finishing third by a slight margin. The races were conducted in a fair and the track was sticky.

CHARLEY PADDOCK HAS NOT HUNG UP SPIKES

By DEAN SNYDER
Charley Paddock hasn't hung up his spikes any more than Jack Dempsey has laid away his boxing gloves. The California running marvel is getting ready to run on the board floors at the big indoor meets of the east this winter.

Paddock likes to run. He loves the lightning which his speed constantly gains for him in the last two heats. He knows that if he drops out of the cinderpath game, he'll slip and never "come back."

Now him to quit unbeaten would be a blow to the game just as much as for Dempsey to retire without ever finding his match in the roped enclosure.

Wright, Jr., and Parker Schofield, amateurs, finished one up on Jim Hendry and Eddie Keefe, professionals, of the Nashua and Longmeadow country clubs respectively in a match on the Andover street course yesterday afternoon. Schofield was put in at the last moment as a substitute for Jesse Guilford who could not come to Lowell.

It was a comfortable day for golf although the lowering clouds about starting time caused some apprehension for a few moments. The match was a close one at all times and the prize was ahead with a lead of two up, but at the next hole, Wright and Schofield each took one apiece evening the score.

Some very good golf was displayed during the afternoon. The contest between Wright and Hendry was a close one all the way but Schofield had an advantage on his opponent throughout the play whereas the other man plainly displayed the fact that he was nervous.

Previous to the match there was an informal dinner at the Washington club to the golfers and their friends. The match was staged under the direction of Charles T. McKenzie assisted by Henry Farrell referee, and John M. O'Donoghue, announcer.

Medal score for the 18 holes was as follows:

Schofield	45	42	36	43
Hendry	44	44	45	41
Keefe	45	44	46	41

RUTH OUT TO BEAT LAST YEAR'S RECORD

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—Babe Ruth must make a home run today or he will fall a day behind his 1920 program for the first time this season. On August 2, 1920, he made his 35th home run, and this year he equalled that total on August 1. Yesterday rain prevented him from trying to add another.

Ruth has great hopes of increasing his total in the Detroit series which starts today as most of his homers this year have been made off Tiger pitchers. His record against each team is as follows: Detroit, 3; Boston, 7; Washington, 5; Philadelphia, Cleveland and St. Louis each 5, and Chicago 1.

PING BODIE IN BOSTON UNIFORM

BOSTON, Aug. 3.—Ping Bodie, obtained by the Red Sox in trade with the New York Yankees last week, will make his debut in a Boston uniform today. It had been reported that he would refuse to join the locals. A testimonial planned by local fans for Harry Hooper, former Red Sox captain, has been postponed, as Hooper did not accompany the White Sox here for the series of which today's game was the first. Sixth place hinged upon the result of today's game, the Sox teams being tied.

MRS. MALLORY RUSHES HERE FOR TOURNEY

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—A dash from a transatlantic steamer direct to the tennis court was planned for Mrs. Mollie Blarstedt Mallory, women's national champion, who arrived today on the steamer United States. She was expected to debark about noon.

Mrs. Mallory is entered in the Metropolitan championship at Glen Cove, N. Y., and will have to make up only two rounds, as rain prevented play yesterday. The former champion is expected to dispose of Miss Jessie Gott of New York in the first round, but lack of practice may make it difficult for her to win the singles tomorrow.

Most of the talk of lively balls is growing thin and faint. Since pitchers get them past the bats by throwing where they ain't.

WILLARD ASKED TO MEET DEMPSEY

TOPKKA, Kan., Aug. 3.—Jess Willard, who is in Topkka, on business, said he received a telegram from Tex Rickard yesterday asking for terms for a bout with Dempsey, and will take the matter up with Rickard at once.

"I will wait four or five months for training," said Willard. "I am anxious to fight Dempsey and Rickard is my choice for promoter. As to terms, I am not ready to announce now what offer will make Rickard."

Willard probably will do some training at my home near Lawrence, in case I enter into a contract to fight Dempsey, and may do most of it on the coast, at Los Angeles, probably."

SUIT FOR $2,000,000 LITTLE SUPPORT FOR TAX PROPOSALS

Portsmouth Woman Seeks Heart Balm From Victor Albert Searles

LYNN, Aug. 2.—A breach of promise suit for $2,000,000 against Victor Albert Searles of Boston, nephew of the late Edwin P. Searles, Methuen millionaire, was filed yesterday at the Suffolk court by Miss Mary Johnson, formerly of Lynn and at present proprietress of a tea room in Portsmouth, N. H.

The plaintiff states that she was introduced to the heir of the millions in 1919, and at that time young Searles was an artist.

She claims that Searles became infatuated with her and proposed marriage within three days after their meeting, and that she patiently waited for her intended husband to return and fulfill his promise, but that he never came back. After investigating, Miss Johnson discovered that her ideal lover was married to another woman.

When the sheriff called at the apartments of Searles yesterday to serve the papers, he found that the young man was cruising on his yacht and was not expected to return for some time.

The suit promises to be one of the most sensational of its kind, and Lynn residents are keenly interested in developments. Searles first came into the limelight when he was out in the will of his late uncle with only a quarter of a million. Searles engaged a lawyer and contested the will, claiming that undue influence was brought to bear upon his uncle at the time of the signing of the will. A bitter legal battle followed and Judge Dew allowed the will to go to a jury on three issues. No decision was reached because a settlement of $5,000,000 was made to young Searles and he withdrew his suit.

Rumors Of Revolution In Lisbon

LONDON, Aug. 3.—A Reuter dispatch filed in Madrid yesterday states that, following rumors from Vigo that a revolution had broken out in Lisbon, a telegram received direct from the Portuguese capital said extensive precautionary measures had been taken in that city. Troops had been brought in from the provinces, the dispatch added, but all was quiet in Lisbon and throughout the country. The troops in Lisbon are said to be confined to their barracks. British official circles and the Portuguese legation in this city were not able today to throw any light on the reports of disorders in Portugal.

charges of Atty. Gen. J. Weston Allen of a conspiracy to "frame" Capt. Chas. E. Stearns of Waltham in an immoral act in order to assist his wife to get a divorce.

Mr. Tufts' account of a now-famous interview with Mrs. Stearns, who had consulted him regarding divorce proceedings, was an emphatic contradiction of the testimony previously given by Mrs. Annie E. Brown, who had charged the district attorney with suggesting that a divorce case could be "arranged" through a woman who would be sent to "trap" Capt. Stearns.

But it bore sufficient resemblance to Mrs. Brown's version to bring into relief the contention of Mr. Tufts' attorney that Mrs. Brown's story was "not a fabrication, but the imaginative creation of a woman who got things all mixed up."

"Catching" Not "Trapping" For example, Mr. Tufts admitted that he talked with Mrs. Stearns about "catching" her husband, but in reply to her repeated assurances that she believed her husband was unfaithful and her request to be advised how she could prove it. Then, he said, he told her that detectives could be employed to follow Capt. Stearns and catch him if, in fact, he was doing the things of which she suspected him.

He repudiated Mrs. Brown's assertions that he had suggested the employment of a woman to go to Fort Monroe, Va., and trap Captain Stearns.

"I never said anything of the kind," he stated with his habitually quick, prompt phrasing. "I had no woman."

"Did you ever know of such a woman or know of its being done?" pursued his senior counsel, Fletcher Ranney.

"Never."

Rumors Spread Against Him

Mr. Tufts further stated that although Mrs. Stearns may have asked his advice as to the employment of Mr. Coakley, he never knew of Coakley's connection with the case, nor of any further developments in the matter until the fall of 1919 when he saw Mr. Allen, candidate for attorney-general, talking with Captain Stearns at a republican gathering. Subsequently, he said, he heard rumors of things Captain Stearns was saying against him and learned "the name of the man who was spreading the rumors."

In view of this statement, Special Atty. Gen. Henry F. Hurlbut, in cross-examination, introduced an affidavit made by Mrs. Brown in December, 1918, long before this campaign. A copy of it was in the hands of the defense, he contended; and on it Mr. Tufts has framed his testimony. This statement to the court brought out Mr. Ranney's reply as to his attitude toward Mrs. Brown's statement.

Chief Justice Ruck, after a busy conference with his associates, ruled that the affidavit is admissible if Mr. Tufts contends that Mrs. Brown's version was an imaginative one, arising after the interview occurred.

"We certainly do," was Mr. Ranney's comment.

Heard Coakley Was High-Priced

Mr. Hurlbut, with suave and subtle manner, then proceeded to cross-examine Mr. Tufts for half an hour. Tufts declared that Mrs. Stearns spoke of employing Mr. Coakley only after he, the district attorney, had positively refused to take her case and she had expressed objections to employing other attorneys whom he recommended.

"Why did you say that Mr. Coakley was high-priced?" demanded Hurlbut at one time. "Was it the result of any past experience?"

"No experience," he had heard it," said Mr. Tufts. "I think I had in mind a case in which you represented Mr. Coakley for recovery of a $10,000 fee."

"Ah, that's the second time you've got at me," said Hurlbut, untruffled.

The testimony of Mr. Tufts opened the way for the reciting of Mr. Coakley, who had previously testified in the Mishawum Manor case. In his account of his employment as counsel for Mrs. Stearns he was asked if he ever hired any woman.

"Never, never, never," he stated, shaking his head. "I never heard these names till I came here. I never dealt with Mr. Tufts in any way, shape, nor manner."

Coakley Gives Detective's Report

Instead of the "Miss Pennington," alleged by the attorney-general to have been a hired accomplice, Mr. Coakley declared his belief that the woman caught with Stearns by Detective Matthew Morgan was Jenny Penn, the Waltham woman whose letters to Stearns had been produced by the wife.

In view of the fact that Detective Morgan is dead and no copy of his report on the affair is in existence, Mr. Coakley was permitted to repeat the contents of it. It told of the tracing of Captain Stearns, in company with the unknown woman, to the Cambridge apartment, where the detective later caught them together. The woman, according to Mr. Coakley's account, denied that she was Jenny Penn, but gave the name of Agnes Powers.

It was at this point that court adjourned.

The mass meeting held on the South common last evening under the auspices of the Lowell citizens' committee was attended by over 5000 people and all listened attentively to the addresses delivered against the adoption of the amendment providing that the construction and reconstruction of streets in this city be done by contract work. The meeting was held immediately after the twilight baseball game and in the course of the

ble. The plan of the organization was to open it in September. They were told, however, by the contractor, that it would be impossible to open the building before January.

Mrs. Dutton went on with her plans for a September opening and told the contractor that the building had to be completed by that time. Further, she was on the ground most of the time, watching the very hammering in of nails and placing of structural work. And in September the New York Woman's Exchange was formally opened for business.

"Our effort," says Mrs. Dutton, "has opened for the women in the little villages and towns a way to meet their financial problems without leaving their homes. They mail their products to us and we sell them for them."

Evening concert numbers were given by a brass band, while the Honey Boy quartet entertained with selections.

The meeting was opened by Michael Regan, who introduced as presiding officer, James Dacey. The principal speaker was William F. Larkin, an organizer for the International Association of Machinists, who in his opening remarks referred to the hearing before the municipal council some weeks ago, at which time the members of the chamber of commerce endeavored to have the wages of the city laborers reduced. He said the chamber is now sore because it did not succeed in its plans and it is now attacking the street laborers. He stated that in his opinion some of the members of the chamber do not care about the cost of contract labor, and they do not care about the cost of municipal labor, their desire is to install the system.

"We are told," he continued, "that in Boston the streets are paved under the contract system for $135 a square yard. This afternoon I read a report from Somerville where the streets are

PRES. HARDING HAS DAY OF REST

Vacation Begins at Sec. of War Weeks' Lodge in the
White Mountains

Phone Four Miles Away
the Outside World

LANCASTER, N. H., Aug. 3.—President Harding found today the seclusion and easement from the cares of office for which he has expressed a desire often since he became chief executive. As a guest of Secretary Weeks at his country home on the summit of Mount Prospect, the president and Mrs. Harding with a party of friends began with a day of rest a vacation which is to last until the end of the week at least. A closed private road is the only approach to their retreat and a telephone four miles away at the foot of the mountain is the nearest connection with the outside world.

It is expected that about their only trips outside the Weeks estate during their stay here will be to nearby golf courses and for sport motor rides in the White Mountains. The president expects to give attention only to the public business as will not permit of delay.

The president and Mrs. Harding reached the Weeks lodge late yesterday by motor from Portland, Me., where they had left the yacht Mayflower after a cruise from Washington. They probably will remain at the capital by the same route, leaving here Saturday or Sunday.

MATRIMONIAL

The marriage of Mr. Joseph Landry and Mrs. Malvina I. Brown, both of this city, took place August 1 at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. S. A. Frank, 415 Meridian street, East Boston, the ceremony being performed by Rev. George W. Warren, pastor of the East Boston Presbyterian church. The couple will make their home at 576 Pine street, this city.

lation of the charter and if so, who is responsible therefor?"

If the mayor carries out what is said to be his intention to probe into conditions mentioned in the letter of the secretary of the chamber of commerce, the purchasing agent will probably be one of the first persons to be asked to appear "on the carpet" in the small corner room in city hall in which the city's chief executive makes his headquarters.

Officials Skeptical
City hall officials, when told of the coming investigation today, were skeptical as to any valuable results being obtained from the probe. It was pointed out that the mayor has no more control over the purchasing agent's office than a private individual. The purchasing agent, it is claimed, is by virtue of provisions of the city charter, a sort of municipal czar. He can only be called to account by the municipal council acting as a whole.

When asked to give his version of the alleged purchase of over $20,000 worth of granite paving blocks without the formality of advertising for bids, Purchasing Agent Foye promised yesterday morning to have a written statement ready for publication early in the day. To all inquiries at the purchasing agent's office the reply of attendants was: "He is not here and we do not know where he is, or when he will be in his office again." The promised statement did not materialize during the day.

Without Advertising
When approached again this morning regarding a reply to the charges that he had bought paving blocks in considerable quantities without advertisement.

American Prisoners in Russia Released
RIGA, Aug. 3.—(By the Associated Press)—American prisoners in Russia already have been released from confinement, according to unofficial reports at the Bolshevik legation press bureau here today, but there was no word as to the number released or when, how, or where they will be delivered across the border.

Arrests Sequel to Seizure of Liquor Ship

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—Arrests of several wealthy and prominent men on charges of conspiracy to violate the federal prohibition law, were promised by federal authorities here today as a sequel to the capture of the schooner Henry L. Marshall, towed into port yesterday with a cargo of liquor on board. Members of the crew, it was intimated, had given the authorities important "leads" concerning the financial sponsors of the Marshall and other run-runners which are said to have piled between the Bahama Islands and the American coast three mile limit.

SUB-POSTOFFICE FOR WEST CENTRALVILLE

If the recommendations of Postmaster John F. Meehan to the postal authorities at Washington are approved, a sub-postoffice will soon be established in West Centralville. The postmaster has received a petition signed by Thomas F. Garvey, president of the Centralville Improvement association; Donat Champagne, president; Narcisse Gadbois, treasurer and Ferdinand Lussier, secretary of the Centralville Social club, requesting that a sub-postoffice be established in the store of Joseph A. Biron at the corner of Aiken avenue and West Sixth streets, and he stated today that he will recommend the granting of the petition.

The nearest sub-postoffices to West Centralville are those in Bridge street and Moody and Aiken streets, a distance of over half a mile. Some years ago, while Hon. John T. Sparks owned the drug store at the corner of Lakeside avenue and Aiken avenue, a sub-postoffice was established there but some three years ago when the store was purchased by Charles L. Cordeau, the latter gave it up and the ground that because of the war he was unable to secure help. Since that time the district has been without a sub-postoffice.

Auctioneer

Office, 53 Central St., Lowell, Mass. Telephone 2415.

The owner of this full two and one-half story two-tenement house and about 4500 square feet of land, more or less, situated at Nos. 207-209 Ludlam street, Centralville, has decided to make sale and therefore has instructed the auctioneer to sell at unrestricted public sale to the highest bona fide bidder upon the premises on next Saturday, the 6th day of August, 1921, at 4 o'clock p.m.

The house is of the full two and one-half story type, of two tenements, with separate entrances, has five rooms and bath and bathroom to each tenement. Each tenement is supplied with open plumbing, china closets, gas, has sewer and water connections.

There are large verandas, the cellars are divided. The house is high situated, has a plentiful supply of closet room and is extra well constructed, is in very good order both inside and out. It is of pleasing design and each tenement having all of its rooms on the one floor makes it convenient to the tenant.

The lot is of attractive area, with splendid frontage on Ludlam street and gives ample room for a garage and garden use.

The upper tenant has occupied the one tenement for a considerable period and pays as a rental the sum of $216 per year, which is an extremely low rental for tenements of this character. The lower flat is at present free of tenants and would enable a purchaser to have immediate occupancy. Already offers have been made ranging in price from $20 to $25 by prospective tenants for this apartment. It therefore assures an owner a steady and continuous rental that would pay heavy return on the amount invested.

To the many, many home seekers the opportunity is herein presented to buy at open competition an attractive, well situated home and investment property.

Its location, within very close proximity to many of Lowell's largest manufacturing industries, within one minute actual walking distance of the Hovey Square line of electric cars and within three minutes' actual walking distance of the Lakeside street line, adds greatly to its value either as a home property or from the investor's standpoint.

Terms: $100 must be paid to the auctioneer as soon as the property is struck off. Other terms made known at the sale.

By order of PETER RYAN,

Chairman Delaney Accuses Superintendent of Schools With Uttering Untruths

Recommendation Offered by the Superintendent Adopted by the Board

Teachers Alleged to Have Been Previously Defrauded Are Elected

Amidst fiery debate, in the course of which Superintendent of Schools Molloy was twice branded a liar by Chairman Delaney of the school board, that body voted yesterday afternoon to elect as permanent substitutes and immediately afterward as teachers in the primary grades, six young women who, according to Mr. Molloy's documents and testimony, were defrauded at the February elections when they should have been chosen in place of others who were. The insistence of prominent local attorneys, representing the four young women in danger of losing their positions, that they be heard, threatened at times to throw the session into an uproar, while a running fire of comments from spectators, who also cheered, hissed, and otherwise gave vent to their emotions on numerous occasions, contributed to the fireworks.

NO ABSENTEE VOTING IN TUESDAY'S ELECTION

There will be no absentee voting in the referendum election on contract work on streets next Tuesday, according to a statement by Hugh P. McKelvey, chairman of the board of election commissioners, today. The commissioner said that a number of inquiries had been received by the board as to the method of procedure to be followed in casting votes by people who expected to be out of the city next Tuesday. According to Mr. McKelvey, persons who are away on vacation, and who wish to be recorded on the street referendum, will have to come back to the city if they wish to vote. The chairman says that the law provides for absentee voting only in state elections.

BIG INCREASE IN DRUNKENNESS HERE

A huge jump in the number of drunkenness arrests in Lowell, eclipsing not only the record of all previous months of the present year, but also the report for July of 1920, was announced today at the office of the probation officer as having been revealed by a tabulating of the figures for the past month.

During July 165 drunkenness arrests were made in Lowell, 152 being of men, and 13 of women. Compared with the tally of July, 1920, the record gives the following startling comparison: Twenty-two more individuals were taken in custody during a single month of the present year in Lowell, than were arrested a year ago. In July, 1920, the number of men arrested for intoxication was only 136, and of women, 7, making the complete sum 143, or 22 less than in July of the present year.

The figures for all preceding months of this year follow: January, 104 arrests; February, 126 arrests; March, 126 arrests; April, 131 arrests; May, 143 arrests; June, 142 arrests; and July, 165 arrests.

NO CHANCE TO RETURN TO GAME

Regardless of Verdicts of Juries, Baseball to Protect Itself Against Crooks

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—None of the American League players acquitted last night of an alleged criminal conspiracy to throw the 1919 world series has any immediate prospect of being restored to organized baseball, according to a statement issued today by Judge K. M. Landis, national baseball commissioner.

"Regardless of the verdict of juries," said the statement, "no player that throws a ball game, no player that entertains proposals or promises to throw a game, no player that sits in a conference with a bunch of crooked players and gamblers where the ways and means of throwing games are discussed and does not promptly tell his club about it, will ever play professional baseball."

"Of course I do not know that any of these men will apply for reinstatement, but if they do the above are at least a few of the rules that will be enforced."

"Just keep it in mind that, regardless of verdicts of juries, baseball is entirely competent to protect itself against the crooks both inside and outside the game."

Of the players acquitted last night only "Buck" Weaver, former third baseman of the White Sox and "Geddy" Risberg, former shortstop, indicated an immediate intention to apply for reinstatement.

Weaver's attorney, Thomas Nash, announced he was going to "put Weaver back in organized baseball." Risberg indicated a desire to return to major league diamonds, but said he would "leave his future in organized baseball in the hands of the officials."

Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the White Sox, declared that the verdict freeing his former players did not change his stand and that until they "cleared themselves" to his satisfaction he would have nothing to do with them.

"Cicotte confessed he was guilty and implicated others," Mr. Comiskey said. "We had three confessions and they have not been accounted for. They implicated themselves and until they can offer a good excuse, we will have nothing to do with them."

Mr. Comiskey said that he would have a complete statement on the matter in a day or two, and refused to make further comment until that time.

Judge Charles A. McDonald, to whom several of the confessions were made, refused to talk about the outcome of the trial.

THOUSANDS AT BIER OF CARUSO

NAPLES, Aug. 3.—(By the Associated Press)—Sorrowing Naples and Italy today paid tribute to the memory of Enrico Caruso, the great tenor who died here early yesterday morning. Thousands gathered at a solemn requiem mass celebrated at the church of Madonna della Gracia, or stood uncovered along the streets leading to that edifice while the funeral cortege passed. In the choir which assisted in the impressive ceremonies, were many men and women who have played stellar roles on the operatic stage.

Scenes of extreme pathos were enacted all day yesterday at the Hotel Vesuvius, following the death of the man popularly acknowledged to be the premier tenor of his generation. Neapolitans of every class stood in line for many hours to file past the bier of Caruso, which was placed in the room where he had died. From time to time the silent procession would pause while some man or woman would kneel for a moment beside the body and offer prayer.

The body was clad in evening clothes and over it was shed the mellow light of four candles, two at the head, and two at the feet. At the dead tenor's side were garlands of roses arranged personally by Mrs. Caruso.

The master singer, who had for nearly a quarter of a century enacted roles in which death was an unseen player, apparently was cognizant of his critical condition, following his sudden illness on Monday. Just before he sank into the coma which was the prelude to the end, he said to his son, Rodolfo:

"I feel very ill. This time it will be difficult to escape. In telling of the death of Caruso, quote one of the attending physicians as saying: 'I and my colleagues believe Caruso never fully recovered from his illness in New York last winter. His long sickness from pleurisy weakened his resistance.'"

Condolences of U. S. Government
ROME, Aug. 3.—Richard Washburn Child, American ambassador to Italy, has sent to Mrs. Enrico Caruso and other relatives of the dead tenor the condolences of the United States government.

To Succeed Caruso
LONDON, Aug. 3.—A Milan despatch to the Daily News says it is authoritatively stated that Giovanni Martellotti will succeed Enrico Caruso as the leading tenor at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York.

MAYOR IS TO START PROBE

Officials Think Investigation of Purchasing Agent's Office Will Be Fruitless

A probe is to be sunk deep into the alleged purchase by a city official of a large quantity of paving blocks without advertising for bids, and is claimed under conditions that were not as favorable as they might have been to the municipality, according to a statement coming from the office of Mayor Perry D. Thompson today. It also became known today that it was only after two and a half months of effort, and a final move to bring legal pressure to bear that the chamber of commerce was able to secure information from the city officials as to the cost of constructing streets in the past. It was stated at a mass meeting on the South common yesterday that the chamber had made no effort to secure correct figures from the street department regarding the cost of building highways in the past. According to information coming from the chamber's rooms, the figures as to paving costs were brought to the chamber headquarters July 26 by a city official after counsel had been consulted as to the taking of steps to force the revealing of figures.

Letter to the Mayor

The decision to probe deep into alleged irregularities in the purchase of paving blocks, at an expense to the city of more than $20,000, was reached by the mayor today, after the receipt of a letter from Secretary-Manager George F. Wells, of the chamber of commerce reading substantially as follows:

"Our attention has been called to an article published in a newspaper with respect to purchase of and payment for blocks for new construction of highways in the city of Lowell, which appears to be contrary to certain provisions of our municipal charter."

"Will you be so kind as to communicate with us with respect to the above matter informing us as to whether there, in fact, has been a violation?"

Officers of Union Release All Members—Many Return to Work Immediately

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 3.—There is no stated price which a union painter shall receive from his employer in this city beginning today. Property owners were notified through an advertisement signed by officers of Painters' local union No. 237, in the local newspapers today, that it had been voted to release every member to go to work wherever he saw fit at any price per hour.

They stated that they had been residing "lockout conditions" for the last eight weeks and had been unable to get a settlement at different conferences with the employers. They claimed they had received only 35 cents an hour out of $1.10 to $1.30 paid by the public.

Representatives of the employers' organization said that as the result of the announcement, some of the men would go back into the shops at once. They said others previously had gone back and some had threatened to do so, and asserted this was "their last stand."

The minimum wage paid the men was 33 cents an hour, and some were paid more than that, they said. The charge of $1.30 an hour was made, it was explained, only where paperhangers, who receive a higher rate, were employed.

Declares Everything He Previously Turned Over Got to Watch and Ward Society

Defense Counsel Objects to Term That Coakley and Tufts Were "Tied Up"

(Special to The Sun)

BOSTON, Aug. 3.—Fireworks marked the trial of Nathan A. Tufts for alleged malfeasance in office today, when Daniel Coakley, one of Boston's best known lawyers, whom the state charges is tied up with district attorney Tufts in many of the latter's alleged deals, broke out under cross-examination and bitterly denounced the Bar association, which he claimed has been conducting a lying, slandering, malicious campaign against him. The attack came when the special attorney general, Henry F. Hurlburt, concluding cross-examination in the Stearns divorce case, asked Mr. Coakley to present to the court all of his check books and check stubs from 1907 to the present time. Mr. Coakley replied: "I don't think it right to ask me to put in all these financial documents. I don't think it right for you to have them to turn over to the Watch and Ward society. Everything I turned over once to the Bar association got to the Watch and Ward society, and I believe that if I should turn these over to you now, the matter would finally get to the Watch and Ward." Then Mr. Coakley continued: "The Bar association has charged me with dividing the swag with Dist. Atty. Tufts. I said I never would testify before the Bar association without having a stenographic report made of the testimony. The Bar association has been conducting a lying and slanderous campaign against me. I knew that if I went before the Bar association and failed to

FURLOUGH FOR MEN OF THE JEWISH FAITH

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—Officers and enlisted men of the Jewish faith in the United States army will be given furloughs for the Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur holidays. It was announced today by the Jewish Welfare board. A letter from Secretary of War Weeks addressed to Dr. Cyrus Adler, chairman of the committee on army and navy activities, advises that the following instructions have been issued to the service:

"The secretary of war desires, in order to permit soldiers of the Jewish faith to participate in the celebrations of high holidays (Rosh Hashanah), beginning at sundown October 2 and continuing until sundown Oct. 4, 1921, and of the day of atonement (Yom Kippur), beginning at sundown October 12 and continuing until sundown October 13, 1921, that members of that faith be granted furloughs for such time as necessary to permit them to be at their homes, when practicable, or at places where these celebrations are held, from September 30 to October 6, and from October 11 to October 14, 1921, provided no interference with the public service is occasioned thereby."
A similar order for furloughs for Jewish men in the navy has been issued by Secretary of the Navy Denby. The above orders were issued upon the request of the Jewish Welfare board which advised the army and navy departments regarding the forthcoming holidays.
The furloughs will enable a large number of Jewish men to celebrate the high holidays with their relatives at home.
Where soldiers are stationed too far away from their homes to permit of this, the Jewish Welfare board will make arrangements to have them attend services at towns adjacent to camps, both in the United States and in the insular possessions. Rabbis will be sent to conduct services at posts where there is a large Jewish personnel and which are not situated near any community.
Special prayer books and New Year's greeting cards will be distributed to the men in the service, by the Jewish Welfare board.

HENRY FORD TELLS HOW TO SAVE RAILROADS

BY E. M. THIERRY
(Copyright 1921 by Newspaper Enterprise)
IN CAMP, VIA OAKLAND, Md., Aug. 2.—"I am not trying to burglarize my railroad—I'm making it serve the public."
That is the bottled-down answer Henry Ford gave when I asked him to tell his "magic formula" for curing America's railroad ills.
Giving two hours out of his vacation to the West Virginia mountains with H. S. Firestone and Thomas A. Edison, he told me how after purchase he rehabilitated the D. T. I. railroad. And he declared that application of the same methods would make all "sleek" railroads well.
"We cut freight and passenger rates 30 per cent, and we boosted wages," said Ford. "And it won't take long to reduce the rates 50 per cent."

All Could Cut
"All railroads could cut their rates in half. We have shown them how. But I'm afraid they won't do it."

only way they know to make money is higher railroad rates—which is the poorest way in the world to get business.
Ford said he "wasn't a magician" and "didn't wield a magic wand." This is his recipe:
"Keep the railroad busy and the equipment busy and all the men on it busy."
"On the D. T. & I. we are getting along fine—making money where the road never made money before, making it because the men are busy and their hearts are in their work."
"We eliminated waste and dead wood. All railroads can—and should—do the same thing."
Ford declared he found enough scrap along the D. T. & I. to pay for its purchase.
"What is the first thing you would do if you were given all the railroads to run?" I asked him.
"Slash rates, boost wages, let a lot of the men go," he replied. "I'd let some of the men go back to the farm—temporarily. They'd be of more use there."
Thinkers Needed
"There are too many men running the railroads who let somebody else do their thinking for them. We want men who can think for themselves."
"That's why I made my son, Edsel, president of the Ford Motor company. He thinks for himself."
"Another thing is that too many men let titles spoil them. That's why I made myself president of the D. T. & I."
"I'm glad to say the title of president didn't spoil Edsel."
As a railroad president Ford receives season passes from other railroads. But he doesn't use them. They offer to haul his private car free. He always pays for it.
"As long as money is the medium of exchange," he said, "I believe it ought to be used. If I want something and I haven't got the money to buy it I ought not to buy it. Too bad everybody doesn't follow that plan."

One of Ford's "reforms" on the D. T. & I. was to take able men out of his motor car industry and let them run the railroad.
Too Much Tradition
"A lot of railroads would be better off if they adopted a policy along that line," he said. "There is too much tradition in the railroads—doing things in old-fashioned ways."
"What did we ever know about railroads—except to ride on 'em? Yet we've got our road organized so that inside of a year it is making money. Any railroad could be put on its feet in that time."
"The old-fashioned method in running railroads—and in lots of other businesses—is to do as little as you can and get the most money as fast as possible."
"I see a new era dawning, with this creed: Do as much as you can, get small returns, and serve the most people—and the money will come in so fast you won't know where it's coming from—it will inundate you."
Too Much Manipulation
I asked Ford what he thought was the matter with American railroads.
"Too much stockholder," he replied promptly. "I mean too much Wall street manipulation—and too much weight in the rolling stock."
"Fundamental principles must be changed. Decisions must be made for lighter rolling stock."
"I don't believe in government ownership, because what is everybody's business is nobody's business. There should be private co-ordination of all the railroad systems."
"Railroads have been managed by stockholders who only figure how much they can get out of them for the moment—not what they can do in the future."
"No, I am not against a great mass of stockholders—if they are the right kind. The right kind of stockholder in a railroad or in any industry is one who is doing the work—who has his heart in it."
"Forty years ago my father used to say something that applies to that very thing."
"He who by the plow would thrive, Must either hold the plow or drive."
Ford pointed to the great number of employees who are stockholders in his motor car and tractor corporations.
"In all our plants and branches we have from 50,000 to 65,000 men," he said. "Two-thirds of them have between $1,000,000 and $10,000,000 invested in the companies they work for. This plan has been in operation two years. An employee can own an investment certificate—which is non-transferable—only so long as he works

WOMEN MEN ADMIRE
Men admire a pretty face, a good figure, but most of all the happy, healthy, contented woman, as beauty fades and the figure will change. Women who are troubled with backache, headaches, those dreadful dragging sensations, and nervous irritability, cannot hope to be popular, and advancement in either home, business or social life is impossible. The cause of these troubles, however, yields quickly to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as it is a natural restorative for such conditions, and dispels effectively all those distressing symptoms.—Adv.

SUIT FOR $2,000,000

Portsmouth Woman Seeks Heart Balm From Victor Albert Searles

LYNN, Aug. 3.—A breach of promise suit for $2,000,000 against Victor Albert Searles of Boston, nephew of the late Edwin P. Searles, Methuen millionaire, was filed yesterday at the Suffolk court by Miss Mary Johnson, formerly of Lynn and at present proprietress of a tea room in Portsmouth, N. H.

The plaintiff states that she was introduced to the heir of the millionaire in 1919, and at that time young Searles was an artist.

She claims that Searles became infatuated with her and proposed marriage within three days after their meeting, and that she patiently waited for her intended husband to return and fulfill his promise, but that he never came back. After investigating, Miss Johnson discovered that her ideal lover was married.

When the sheriff called at the apartments of Searles yesterday to serve the papers, he found that the young man was cruising on his yacht and was not expected to return for some time.

The suit promises to be one of the most sensational of its kind, and Lynn residents are keenly interested in developments. Searles first came into the light when he was cut off in the will of his late uncle with only a quarter of a million. Searles engaged a lawyer and contested the will, claiming that undue influence was brought to bear upon his uncle at the time of the signing of the will. A bitter legal battle followed and Judge Dow allowed the will to go to a jury on three issues. No decision was reached because a settlement of $5,000,000 was made to young Searles and he withdrew his suit.

BARON KORFF ADDRESSES INSTITUTE OF POLITICS

WILLIAMSTOWN, Aug. 3.—Relations which, after beginning with avowed enmity, continued so for many years but finally resulted in an alliance which had Russia and England fighting side by side in the world war, were described today by Baron Korff, former deputy governor general of Finland in a lecture before the Institute of Politics at Williams college.

The "statesmanlike vision" of King Edward VII of Great Britain, he declared, was an impelling factor in bringing about the ultimate friendship.

Discussing the situation in Persia, which at one time threatened the amicable relations between the two nations, the speaker declared that Great Britain played the game of Russian autocracy because it saw that the interests served in the west by the continued friendship of the two governments were far more important than anything involved in Persia.

Baron Korff commented on the part played in Persia by an American, though he remarked that the United States government had no share in it, saying:

"Finally, in 1911, there appeared on the scene the American treasury general, W. Morgan Shuster, who by his impudence and tactlessness, soon brought the crisis to a head. It was Persia, who had to pay the price for this diplomatic game."

"Morgan Shuster had a splendid chance of playing the role of Blarney in 1888 as an honest broker between the two contending sides, the Russian and the English. If only he would have handled the situation cautiously and tactfully. He started, however, just the other way by violently antagonizing the Russians."

"One must say, however, that in no way did Shuster represent the United States; on the contrary, and this was rather unfortunate, he managed the situation single handed. There was no moderating influence from Washington."

In conclusion, Baron Korff said: "In the second decade of the 20th century the Russian nation had forgotten the former enmity against England. When the war began in the summer of 1914 the enthusiasm of the Russians was tremendous when they heard that England would participate. They felt a peculiar assurance that for that reason the war would be won."

POLICE COURT IN THE WET COLUMN

The police court has gone wet! But, alas, it's only water. After a number of requests from members of the local bar, a water cooler, with spring water and paper cups, has been installed in the police court for the use of those concerned with the trial of cases. The purchase was made by Clerk of Court Trull at the instance of the presiding justices of the court.

LITTLE SUPPORT FOR TAX PROPOSALS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—Suggestions for new taxes made by Treasury Secretary Mellon apparently found little support yesterday among members of the house ways and means committee.

Some committee members were plainly spoken, while others, without entering into the arguments advanced for or against the proposals said it was their judgment that the committee's efforts should be directed toward easing the existing burden.

With this end in view it was explained that republican members of the committee had before them today Chairman Madden of the appropriations committee; Eugene Meyer, Jr., director of the war finance corporation and Director General Davis of the railroad administration. Mr. Meyer and Mr. Davis were called in to discuss railroad financing and the chairman of the interstate commerce commission probably will be questioned later on the same subject.

Chairman Madden said the purpose was to get specific information as to the financial needs of the government and then to determine just what cuts could be made. He stated that Mr. Meyer had told the committee that under the plan recently submitted to congress by President Harding, the railroad financing could be taken care of without more than temporary assistance from the treasury from time to time until the securities proposed to be issued could be marketed.

A fight against any license tax on cars was launched yesterday by an American Automobile association. In a letter already transmitted to Chairman Madden the association said the federal sales tax on machines and the state and municipal taxes of all forms now totalled $246,720,378 annually, or $34.67 per car and that any increase would "add to the already excessive burden charged against the automobile user."

A. A. H. L. OUTING

A largely attended meeting of the general committee of the A. A. H. L. which is in charge of the outing to be held at Spaulding park Labor day, was held last evening in A. O. H. hall, Middle street. Favorable reports concerning the arrangements for the affair were heard and definite assurance was received from state headquarters that Miss Mary MacSwiney would appear as a speaker and the music will be furnished by an Irish pipers' band from Worcester.

STOLEN AUTO RECOVERED

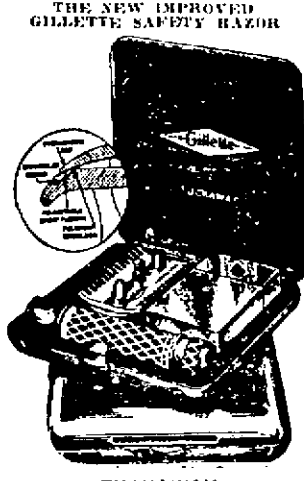

The Mitchell touring car owned by Mr. John J. Healey, of Mitchell's tailor, 120 North Main street, was reported stolen August 2 and, after a search yesterday evening, was recovered by the local police in the early hours of this morning. The car was located on East Merrimack street, and Healey was notified of its discovery.

SUBURBAN DAY IS BIG SUCCESS

Unusually heavy business was reported this afternoon by local merchants, who are celebrating Suburban Day by special bargains in all departments. The local weather conditions are believed responsible for the influx of shoppers from outlying towns, who kept the sales forces of mercantile establishments on their toes attending to their wants.

Managers of many stores expressed gratification at the efforts of Lowell business men to reduce prices by increasing the volume of trade. It was announced that plans for the Suburban day scheduled for September will be gotten under way immediately.

The Sun is credited with a large share of the success of the occasion by the merchants, as a result of featuring the importance of the bargain offered to local and out-of-town residents.

Quitting City's Clamor for Farm's Delight and Going Back to the Land in Style

By Newspaper Enterprise
EN ROUTE, New York to Idaho, Aug. 2.—Thirteen-year-old Muriel Scott has a job any kid would envy. She's the bugler of the motor caravan that is carrying 25 Brooklyn families to homesteads in Idaho. Muriel, dressed in khaki and a cow-girl hat, "blows up" the Argonauts in the morning and sounds "taps" at night as the modernized "forty-niners" progress on their six-weeks' trip to Idaho.

Camping along the road each night, the caravan is a huge frolic in the eyes of the eleven children between 7 and 15. Half a dozen others under six—including the youngest pioneer, six-months-old Mary Cecilia Walsh—can't quite understand what it's all about, except that it's a lot more fun than living in Brooklyn.

Commander's Daughter
Bugler Muriel is the daughter of William A. Scott, commander-in-chief of the caravan. She sits beside him on the front seat of his auto, which leads the procession of cars. Each car has a trailer that carries more comforts than all the early-day "prairie schooners" put together.

Scott, who is tall and very thin and bald-headed, is the man who conceived the idea of collecting all the dissatisfied city folk he could find and piloting them to new homes on a tract of irrigated government land—40 acres per family—near Buhl, Idaho. Strapped to the side of Scott's car is a Winchester rifle presented to him just before the caravan left Brooklyn. The rifle is silver mounted and is a duplicate of the one carried by the late William F. Cody (Buffalo Bill). "We're getting back to the land," explained Scott. "All of us, especially the children, will be healthier and happier out in the open. I'm through with city life."

Not everybody, however, left the city without a pang. Mrs. Arthur Vermaire, mother of four children, turned around and took one last look at Brooklyn. But, unlike Lot's wife, she wasn't turned to salt—only to salty tears.

Far more enthusiastic was Peter A. Vanderput, who presented his butcher shop to his son, and started out to grow alfalfa with "all bridges burned behind him."

NEW YORK SEES DOUBLE WEDDING OF JAPANESE

MOTOR NOTES

Scotch Company Has Made Carburetor for Alcohol

A Scotch company has experimented with alcohol as a motor fuel with the result that an alcohol carburetor has been introduced.

This carburetor, called a D. C. L., has a float chamber of ordinary type. But the regular jet is replaced with an opening controlled by a needle valve.

The interesting part of this carburetor is that hot air must be introduced into the mixing chamber. For this purpose, the chamber is enclosed in an asbestos lining to conserve the heat. As the engine speeds up, cooler air may be sent through.

When the engine is cold, the carburetor must be heated before the fuel will vaporize. This is done by a coil of electric wire around the fuel well.

In a comparison test of the D. C. L. carburetor with alcohol and an ordinary one with gasoline, the inventors say, the D. C. L. proved itself more economical. A car that went 25 miles on a gallon of gasoline was driven 35 miles on a gallon of alcohol fed through the D. C. L. carburetor.

The use of alcohol as a motor fuel, say experts, may even go so far as to exceed its consumption in liquor before the days of the drought. And it is expected to be cheaper than gasoline, too.

APPROVE BONUS FOR MISSOURI SOLDIERS

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 2.—Approval of a cash bonus for Missourians who served in the world war, submission to a general vote of a proposal for a constitutional convention, and the use of automobile license fees to pay interest on $50,000,000 in road improvement bonds, was indicated today by incomplete unofficial returns from yesterday's special election. A proposed change in the constitution allowing women to hold all state offices, apparently was in doubt.

IN THE POLICE COURT

Billerica Youth Charged With Larceny of Auto Held for Hearing

A brief docket engaged the attention of Judge Thos. J. Enright in the police court this morning. Henry Muller, co-defendant with John I. Maguire in a charge of stealing an automobile from John A. Green of Billerica July 30, appeared and was held for a hearing August 11. Both defendants are Billerica youths. Maguire was first taken into custody by Officer Livingston, and was before the court yesterday, being held in $500 bonds furnished by his parents. Subsequently came Muller's arrest.

Peter J. Allen, charged by his wife with threatening, was given six months' probation from a three months' house of correction sentence. He was ordered to let his woman alone, and to contribute to her support.

Three drunks were released by Mr. Michael Dowd, acting probation officer in the absence of Mr. Slattery. One defendant drew six months' probation.

DAMAGE BY CLOUDBURST

Arkansas River Within Three Feet of Levee Top—Cities Above Pueblo, Flooded

PUEBLO, Colo., Aug. 3.—The Arkansas river in Pueblo was within three feet of the levee top here today as a result of cloudbursts yesterday in the Royal Gorge and surrounding places above Canon City but danger of a new flood was believed passed. Canon City and Florence, both above Pueblo, were partly flooded by the high waters and considerable property damage was done.

The superintendent of the Arkansas Valley Light and Power Co., here announced that a cloudburst between Lima and Florence had sent the St. Charles river over its banks and had washed out a highway bridge on the Santa Fe trail at the junction of the St. Charles and Arkansas rivers.

Prompt action of rescue parties in boats prevented loss of life at Canon City when a 14-foot wall of water swept down the Arkansas river out of the Royal Gorge. A number of residences were destroyed, manufacturing plants were damaged and the city water system was put out of commission.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS AT K. OF C. CONVENTION

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 3.—Election of supreme officers and international directors was the first order of business at the second session of the International Knights of Columbus convention today.

John R. Reddin of Denver, supreme master of the fourth degree of the order, announced that the following named had accepted invitations to serve on the K. of C. national American history commission under the chairmanship of E. W. McGowan of Boston: Admiral William S. Benson, Washington; Prof. George Derry, Union college, Schenectady; Charles S. McCarthy, Washington, and Maurice Francis Egan. Other names, he said, will be announced as acceptances are received.

The commission will have charge of the K. of C. million dollar fund for the promotion of American history study written from original sources. The first commission meeting will be held in New York next month.

The prettiest girl on the local women's entertainment committee will be chosen today and presented a $1000 jeweled lavalliere by the Massachusetts delegation.

On June 1 the total membership of the Knights of Columbus was 135,135. Supreme Secretary McGinley reported. The Knights were instrumental in raising $1,000,000 for charity during the year.

LICENSE BOARD HOLDS MEETING

Considerable routine business was transacted by the license commission at its weekly meeting held last evening. A conference was held with one hawk and peddler charged with giving short measure. Complaint was made by deputy sealer of weights and measures Charles Gallagher. A hearing will be given to the matter Tuesday next. Louis J. Ragolsky was given leave to withdraw a license application made by him.

The following surrenders and cancellations were approved: Peter Tubak, Lord's day license; Antonio Koutakis, coffee house; Sam Naran and Garman Oullett, pool rooms.

The following renewals were allowed: Mrs. Katherine Vassar, of Coburn street, Lord's day license; Peter Georgelas, Coolidge street, Lord's day license; the Middlesex Women's club, dancing permit at Middlesex and Colonial halls; Abraham and Morris Klain, hawking and peddling license, Howard street; Omer Belkorse, Hall street, hawking and peddling.

New licenses granted were: Waslaw Tarasiewicz, Central street, Lord's day license; Frank McMahon, Broadway, Lord's day license; Antonio Avila, George street, Lord's day license; Peter Kowalski, Lakeview avenue, Lord's day license; Boyd Baker, Inc., Merrimack street, common victualler; Stathis Tolas, Jefferson street, coffee house; Ouellette and son, White street, express; Stervante Repair shop, Brookside street, business in second hand motor vehicles; George C. McEwan, Cunningham street, business in second hand motor vehicles; Eugene Trudel, Austin St., pool; and Joseph Hazzar, Moody street, pool.

The meeting which was requested by the brotherhoods, is said to have been asked to "clearly place the railroad on record as to whether they will request further decreases in wages and the elimination of time and one-half for overtime."

After today's conference, the brotherhoods which then will take a referendum vote on the 12 per cent wage reduction recommended by the United States labor board on July 1,

LEGION DELEGATES SAIL

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—With the flag of the national commander of the American legion flying at her masthead, and more than 250 members of that organization on board, the American passenger steamship George Washington sails today for Cherbourg and Bremen.

The Legioners will dis embark at the first port, whence they will go to visit the battlefields on which for more than a year they fought against the forces of the German empire. To many of them it will be the first visit to the scene of conflict since they left to rhyme, uniformed members of a victorious army.

The Legion party is headed by National Commander John G. Emery and includes men from every state of the Union.

Cable advices from Cherbourg said that the veterans will be officially received there by representatives of the French government. A special detail of American soldiers from the forces now in Germany will be on hand to welcome their former comrades.

Tourists in Paris and Marshal Foch will join them in Flery where a monument erected by the citizens of liberated Loraine will be unveiled as a token of esteem to America.

"We are making this pilgrimage," said National Commander Emery, "as a proof that the war alliance of America and France was based on righteous concepts. More than two years have passed since we fought side by side. Many friendships have been broken in that time, many agreements and associations repudiated, but the friendship endures because it rests on something more binding than the formal agreements of statesmen. It is based on a common understanding and a oneness of aspiration that lives deep in the hearts of the two great democratic peoples."

CONSIDER R. R. WAGE CUTS AND CONDITIONS

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—The questions and working conditions were taken up at a conference here today between heads of the four big railroad brotherhoods, the Switchmen's Union of North America, and a committee of the Association of Railway Executives.

The meeting which was requested by the brotherhoods, is said to have been asked to "clearly place the railroad on record as to whether they will request further decreases in wages and the elimination of time and one-half for overtime."

After today's conference, the brotherhoods which then will take a referendum vote on the 12 per cent wage reduction recommended by the United States labor board on July 1,

French Bond Issue Successful

PARIS, Aug. 3.—Subscriptions of nearly 5,500,000,000 francs have been received by the government for the issue of 6 per cent treasury bonds, which will mature in two years, says the Journal. The newspaper declares that the bond issue has been successful.

Allies Warn Greece Against Advance

LONDON, Aug. 3.—(By the Associated Press)—The allies have warned Greece that an advance on Constantinople by her troops, which now are engaged in war with the Turkish nationalists, will not be tolerated, it was authoritatively stated here today. No ground exists however, it is added, for believing that Greece contemplates any such advance, which would bring her into conflict with the allied army of occupation. Reports from Athens that Great Britain favors a Greek advance on Constantinople, were characterized as absurd—the exact reverse of the truth. Great Britain, it was declared, is maintaining strict neutrality between Turkey and Greece.

Bishop O'Leary Tendered Reception

MANCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 3.—Rt. Rev. Thomas M. O'Leary, D. D., bishop-elect of Springfield, Mass., was tendered a farewell reception by Rt. Rev. George Albert Guertin, D. D., bishop of Manchester diocese and about 150 of the diocesan clergy at St. Joseph's orphanage today. Following the reception a banquet was served by the Sister of Mercy. The Manchester bishop and clergy presented to the new Springfield bishop a magnificent set of pontifical insignia, including crozier, pontifical pectoral cross, bishop's pectoral cross, bishop's pontifical ring, bishop's ring, gold chain and pontifical cord. All are gold with amethyst and diamond settings. Rev. Matthew Creamer of Nashua made the presentation and Rev. T. J. E. Devery, pastor of St. George's church this city, presided at the post prandial exercises.

Means, floor superintendent, accompanied by his son, Walter, is enjoying an automobile trip through the various beaches; Mr. Louis Cole, buyer of men's clothing, is spending his vacation at Stafford Springs, Ct. Miss Mae McCarthy of the Little Grey Shops is enjoying her vacation at Portsmouth, N. H. Mr. Joseph H. Martin, display manager, is spending his vacation at Nantasket beach. Miss Lilly Ryan, of the undermellins, is at St. Johnsbury, Vt. Mr. Francis Plant, buyer of the housewares department, is in Connecticut. ## GENERAL MANAGER DOES ANY OLD THING

Miss Mary Bartlett is general manager of a dairy at Savannah, Ga. Every day she supervises the handling of at least 400 gallons of milk and as many pounds of butter, as well as keeping an eye on the stock in their pastures and some very fine roses which bloom just outside the window of her office.

"Trust a woman to have something growing and beautiful around her place of business," says Miss Bartlett. "I believe that the more women invade the business world, the more attractive the setting for business is going to become. Even a dairy-woman loves the beautiful."

In spite of the fact that Miss Bartlett's title is that of general manager, she does "anything there is to do." "If our regular clerks are out, I sell milk and if the checkers are not about, I check the drivers."

"Woman's home training has made her willing to do the thing at hand, and that quality is what has made her progress in the business world speedy and a thing of comparative ease," says Miss Bartlett.

Miss Bartlett has been connected with the dairy business for 15 years.

FIREMEN OVERCOME
Cellar of Paige St. Shoe Store

A cellar fire which gave the firemen considerable trouble started shortly after 11 o'clock last night in the cellar of the Paige St. Shoe Store Co. in Paige street, near Bridge, and continued for upwards of one hour before it was finally subdued. In the course of the fire, District Chief Saunders and two or three other men were overcome by smoke and had to be sent to their homes. Perry Simpson, another fireman, had his leg injured while fighting the blaze and was also removed to his home.

When the fire was first noticed the smoke was coming from the coal office of E. A. Wilson and entrance was forced into this place, but when they investigated, the firemen found that it was in the adjoining cellar. A second entrance was forced into the cellar place and after considerable difficulty the firemen located the blaze. Once this was definitely established there was little fear for the fire spreading, and after half an hour's concentrated work it was extinguished. The damage was not very great.

An amusing feature in connection with the fire came when a line of hose which was being laid into the cellar burst on the sidewalk in front of the store and sent streams of water several yards on each side, scattering the large crowd in all directions and drenching many to the skin. A second coupling also broke before the firemen succeeded in sending a stream into the cellar.

Officer William Murphy discovered the blaze and sent in the alarm from box 26 in Merrimack square.

Mrs. Edison Says Husband is
Some Sleeper

BY EDWARD THIERRY

Copyright, 1921, by The Lowell Sun

IN CAMP, via Oakland, Md., Aug. 2.—Do you believe Thomas Edison sleeps only four hours a night?

That question has been asked more often than any other concerning the world's greatest inventor—and never answered till today.

But now I have the straight of it from none other than Mrs. Edison herself, who has just explained to me her husband's theory and system of sleep.

Edison does sleep only four hours a night, and sometimes less than that,—when he's working.

But when he plays and relaxes, he catches up in sleep. He sleeps at night and he naps through the day—seven hours, ten hours, sometimes a great deal more.

Reveals Scientifically

"Mr. Edison takes his rest scientifically," said Mrs. Edison. "When he works he works hard and works long hours. When he sleeps he sleeps just as hard."

"This is the time when he sleeps—here in camp. Another time is when we go to our winter home at Fort Myers, on the west coast of Florida."

"Down there he almost hibernates, and with sleep he rebuilds himself against another rigorous spell of work. We have hammocks all around the house. Mr. Edison goes from one hammock to another, 'sleeping his way around the house,' moving on as the sun drives him out."

Naps Between Naps

"Sometimes at night he may sleep only a few hours. But when he is back close to nature—to the trees and words and creeks he loves—he sleeps during the day."

"He goes to sleep in a chair, on the ground or in a hammock. He has a most peculiar power of dropping into a heavy slumber instantly and in a short time rousing for a sort of intermission."

"For a while he reads, and then sleeps—fishes for a while, and then drops off—eats, and then naps."

He even napped in a chair while Bishop W. F. Anderson conducted Sunday services.

"If I didn't know how dear Mr.

Edison is," smiled Bishop Anderson, "I might charge myself with preaching him to sleep!"

Mrs. Edison laughed and said:

"It is one of Mr. Edison's chief regrets that because of his poor hearing he cannot attend church services. He used to try, but he couldn't hear a word that was said."

"Nevertheless his every instinct is Christian."

"He is not sensitive about his deafness, as so many are. He thinks deafness has its compensations. He says he can work better—and besides so many people say things that aren't worth hearing!"

AMUSEMENT NOTES

(By Theatres' Own Press Agents)

THE STRAND

"The Blazing Trail," Frank Mayo's most recent Universal photodrama, is to be shown at The Strand theatre the last half of the present week, beginning tomorrow. It will have an especially interesting presentation, and as it holds the promise of a most exciting and sensational picture, it is easily seen that it stands out as a headliner among headliners.

The picture takes up the thread of a young physician's life, he having exhausted his brain power through overstudy to find a blood specific. In order that he may recover from the strain he has subjected himself to, he goes down into the Blue Ridge mountains and there engages in work anew. He regains his mental strength, and finds himself quite thoroughly inoculated with the love germ. It certainly does work havoc with his heart, but it doesn't hurt his head. In a presentation company is an exceedingly capable cast, aside from Mr. Mayo, Lillian Rich, Mary Philbin, Ray Ripley, Verne Winter, Bert Spry, Madge Hunt and Helen Gilmore have exceptionally good parts. Ripley who is called the most fascinating villain in the movies is exceedingly well cast.

Mabel Normand, the darling of all those who like laughter, will appear in a Goldwyn picture of the latest vintage, called "What Happened to Rosa." The distance between the carefree, romantic days of Old Spain and the drugging, dragging hours of the basement shop girl, lies between Mayo Ladd and Rosa Alvaro, both parts being portrayed by Miss Normand. The transition from one to another makes a wonderfully compelling photoplay.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

Final performance of "A Wise Fool" with James Kirkwood in the leading role, will be given at the Merrimack Square theatre this evening. Tomorrow there will be the usual mid-week change of program.

The outstanding features for Thursday, Friday and Saturday will be the presentation of the carefree, romantic days of Old Spain and the drugging, dragging hours of the basement shop girl, lies between Mayo Ladd and Rosa Alvaro, both parts being portrayed by Miss Normand. The transition from one to another makes a wonderfully compelling photoplay.

The star is supported by an unusual cast. Playing the lead role of Monty in a manner reminiscent of the part's best traditions is Jerome Patrick, the good-looking leading man, who has appeared so successfully in recent motion pictures, notably, "The Furnace," and "His First Love."

As Aunt Joan, who has grown to be an old maid far too soon, Ruth Stonehouse shows the same cleverness which has brought her such fame in the past. Edward Flanagan of the well-known vaudeville team of Flanagan and Edwards, gets splendid laughs from the role of Peter, the "safety first" lover.

CHELMSFORD WATER

DISTRICT MEETING

Walter Perham acted as moderator at the meeting of the Chelmsford water district, which was held last evening in the Centre town hall. The warrant contained ten articles and all were disposed of in brief time. Article one called for the election of a moderator, Mr. Perham being the choice of the assembly. Articles two and three called for the rescinding of the action taken at a meeting held May 24 when it was voted to extend the service in Dalton road. Both were adopted.

Under article four it was voted to extend the service in Dalton road, a distance of 480 feet to the site of the new building, and under article five the sum of $225 was borrowed to defray the expenses of this work. Article six called for the rescinding of a vote taken at the last meeting for the extension of the service in Dalton road from the residence of Karl M. Perham to the intersection of North road. The article was defeated.

Under article seven it was unanimously voted to extend the service about 625 feet in Perham street at or about the intersection of Billerica road to the residence of George A. Jones, and on Grove St. from a point at or about the intersection of Perham street to the residence of Hans sen, about 325 feet. To defray the expense of the same the treasurer was authorized to borrow a sum of money not to exceed $1450. It was unanimously voted under article nine that the district extend its service about 700 feet in Sylvan avenue from a point at or about the intersection of the Lowell road. In support of this article a letter was read from George W. Day, guaranteeing three service connections. To defray the expense of this work the treasurer was unanimously authorized to borrow a sum of money not to exceed $1550. The meeting was then adjourned.

CHINA SEES GATEWAY TO LASTING PEACE

BY NORRIS QUINN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—Official China sees in President Harding's November conference on disarmament and far eastern affairs an open gateway to real and lasting peace and, with peace, the opportunity to develop Chinese national resources.

That is the view of Sao-Ke Alfred Sze, Chinese minister to the United States, who gave to The Sun correspondent his first public statement in connection with the coming conference.

Sze is expected to be one of China's delegates at the conference. "Amity to all; enmity toward none—those six words summarize the policy of the Chinese at the conference," Sze said. "Further than that, I can say nothing of China's program, for I do not believe any definite program has been decided on."

"China's greatest need is a durable peace. My country will cooperate to the utmost in securing that."

"China wants a chance to develop its natural resources and its foreign trade. It has been hampered by the uncertainty of far eastern affairs."

The much-mooted Anglo-Japanese treaty, Sze hinted, might come before the conference when discussion turns to far eastern matters.

The Anglo-Japanese alliance, he pointed out, "has a great deal to do with China, but China has nothing to do with it."

"There is an agreement," Sze said, "vitally affecting China, but China has not even been consulted in its making. Any nation would resent such treatment."

"The preservation of peace in the

China's Interest

While Sze was unable to outline China's program at the conference

that nation will be interested in these problems:

Return of Shantung by Japan to China.

Japanese interests in Mongolia.

Differences between the government at Peking and the revolutionary regime at Canton will not affect dealings at the conference. This is said to be purely an internal problem.

board are: Annabell V. Keyes, Jennie T. Frawley, Mary J. Campbell, Elsie E. Perron, Minnie Phil, and Anna H. Roulme, while those menaced with loss of their positions include: Helen G. Lyons, Bridget V. O'Connell, Katherine G. Dewire and Lucy Desmond. While no formal action was taken by the body relative to the status of the last four, unless at Friday evening's conference with their representatives the members are able to devise some plan, now apparently impossible, they seem certain to be thrown out of their employment as teachers of the city of Lowell. Mr. Hargrove called attention during the meeting to the fact that any arrangement which cared for them would work grave injustice on others ahead of them on the list. Hon. James E. O'Donnell, speaking for one of the girls, declared that he had a plan of some sort in his mind, but was not prepared to state it at the gathering.

Mr. Molloy, at one point in the session, remarked that the situation would be somewhat altered by Friday, as he intended in the interim to place the case in the hands of the proper law officers.

Mr. Delaney, in calling the meeting to order, stated that it was a special one held to give the chairman an opportunity to answer a prepared statement made by the superintendent of schools at the last session. He observed that he had a set of plans on his desk (exhibiting these) and mentioned that the commissioner of public buildings had requested action on these at the meeting. The plans, which were of a new school for the Highlands, gained their last recognition at this point, for Mr. Delaney's red glare and angry burst in air apparently wiped them out of all memories. Amid the verbal fray of those speaking formally, and the murmurs and other expressions of pleasure or displeasure of the spectators, the plans peacefully sank to obscurity, and the gathering adjourned without discussing them.

Mr. Delaney's Statement

The battle began a moment after Mr. Delaney's first utterance. Mr. Bergeron arising to demand a temporary chairman. He said that Mr. Delaney, as an interested party in the subject of the meeting, could not rightly hold the chair. Mr. Delaney, however, took issue with this view, which proved the opening gun in a conflict only ended by submission to the suggestion first advanced by Mr. Bergeron. However, at the time the chairman declined to be unseated, explaining that he merely intended to read a statement, not to participate in the voting. He then proceeded to follow the statement, which he read aloud in animated tones, afterwards distributing copies to the press.

To the members of the Lowell school committee:

Gentlemen: At our last regular meeting, Tuesday, July 20, 1921, Mr. Hugh J. Molloy, superintendent of schools, read a very carefully prepared statement in which he called to the attention of the committee certain alleged irregularities, or as he termed it, a wrong election of permanent substitute teachers on the evening of February 17, 1921, but he makes a deliberately false statement when he says he did not know anything about it until next morning. I wish to call the attention of the committee that I was in consultation with Mr. Molloy at his residence on the evening of February 17, 1921, between the hours of 6.30 and 7.30. The business agent of the department will corroborate this assertion that the agent drove me from my home to Mr. Molloy's residence and left me there, going to his own home on Chelmsford street, to have supper; that afterwards the agent returned and drove me from Mr. Molloy's residence to the school committee room at city hall. (This is in reply to Mr. Molloy's statement that he was not consulted and knew nothing of the matter until he read the newspaper account of the meeting). Mr. Molloy knew all about the list and the proposed election of substitute teachers, in that it was for the express purpose of seeking his advice that I went to his house. Later Mr. Molloy assigned these very teachers to schools. I did receive the list in question and had that list with me when I consulted Mr. Molloy at his home, and that paper was on my desk on the night of the meeting, open to the inspection of the entire board. The missing list was left by me with all the other papers on my desk at the close of the meeting, and that was the last time I saw it. The school board all went out together that night, and the business agent drove us to our homes. The first request for the paper, that I heard, was at least four months after the meeting, although Mr. Molloy was in active control of the department practically every day for four months. If not more, after the election, as attached no importance to the paper, as it was only used as a memorandum, at that meeting, and was practically of no account after July—there being a new list.

The school board has never adopted any rules since I have been a member.

You may be only thirty, but if bald-headed, gray, or your hair is brittle, scraggly and ugly-looking, people will surely take you to be much older.

If you want a lot of good-looking hair the roots must be immediately vitalized and kept properly nourished. To do this quickly and safely, get from your druggist a bottle of Parisian sage. A little attention now will insure plenty of beautiful hair for years to come.

Parisian sage is guaranteed to keep away all dandruff, stop scalp itch and falling hair and stimulate a new growth, or money refunded. It's in great demand by discriminating women because it makes the hair soft, lustrous, easy to arrange attractively and appear much heavier than it really is.

Concerning the examinations and method, Mr. Molloy has repeatedly informed the board that he sent only the examination papers, with their numbers to Worcester, retaining the name, number and address of the parties examined here in Lowell, in his own private safe. That being so, Mr. Molloy during all this time must have had the names, numbers and addresses of all those examined.

Why the uproar about this missing paper, if he had all the information in his safe? Nobody in the world knew what the papers were until he disclosed them—he had the key to them all. The Worcester party did not know the names of the applicants or their addresses. The names and numbers remained with Mr. Molloy and if the missing paper is lost, how can Mr. Molloy give the numbers and the names and addresses on the lost paper—if he has a copy, why was it not produced at the next regular meeting of the board, after the election of February 17, if there were any irregularities? The answer is, Mr. Molloy knew all the circumstances attending the election.

When Mr. Molloy attacks a member of the board in the manner that he did, there is but little room for him to talk respect for either moral or legal rights. My character for truth, sobriety and public conduct is known to all the people and I believe will compare at least favorably with that of our superintendent of schools. If he wishes the reason for this statement I would be pleased to give him my information.

The trouble in this case is that there

WILL MOVE TO SYRACUSE

Lamson Company to Leave Lowell Soon as New Plant is Ready

The Lamson company, which has been doing business in this city for a great many years, occupying a large plant in Walker street, has purchased a large tract of land at Syracuse, N. Y., and will immediately start the erection of a large plant there. As soon as the new mill is in readiness the machinery of the local plant will be moved to Syracuse. This information was given to The Sun this morning by William P. Merrill, president of the company, whose headquarters are in Boston.

The change will affect about 600 men, who are now working full time, but Mr. Merrill stated that as many of the Lowell employees who wish to go to Syracuse will be given employment. When asked how soon the company planned to abandon the local plant, Mr. Merrill replied "perhaps this fall, next spring or next fall." He said it would all depend on how soon the Syracuse plant will be ready for occupancy.

Three reasons are being given for the change: First, that Lowell is too

HONOLULU, Aug. 3.—(By the Associated Press)—Twenty-one Japanese, many of them prominent, were indicted here yesterday on charges of criminal conspiracy in connection with violence incident to the strike of sugar plantation workers last year. Six of the indicted men surrendered, six others were arrested at Hilo, Island of Hawaii; three are known to have escaped to Japan. The culminating act of violence during the strike occurred June 3, 1920, when the house of a Japanese who refused to join the strikers, was dynamited.

is too much politics being played in the school board for the best interests of our schools and the public service, and that is the reason that at the beginning of my present term of office I decided that it would be my last on the school board.

It has been impossible for the school board to get existing conditions, from the superintendent of schools, hence the necessity of calling a meeting of all the masters and principals of all our public schools last June, to learn of the conditions in our schools, which was one of the reasons that Mr. Molloy became angry at the chairman. Time and again when wanting to know and get necessary information from the superintendent he could not be found, the answer being, "out of town." Repeatedly have I insisted that Mr. Molloy visit our schools more often, but never could I get satisfactory action. Many times have I asked Mr. Molloy to install some method of standardization so that the work of the different grades may be quickly ascertained, but this has been laughed at by the same Mr. Molloy.

These are a few of the reasons which are the actual cause of the firing of the superintendent against your chairman. My constant effort has been for harmony, but owing to the conduct of Mr. Molloy I have been unable to obtain it. Neither his conduct, letter nor false statements has terrorized me in the least.

I acted after consulting with Mr. Molloy; I acted after disclosing all details to him and he told me this better than the same Mr. Molloy.

Suggested Legal Advice

"Gentlemen, you have heard the statement. What is your pleasure?" concluded Mr. Delaney, whereupon Mr. Donnelly expressed himself to the effect that the board, in his opinion, should not venture further in this delicate matter without legal advice and assistance. He urged that all information and papers be placed in the hands of the city solicitor, and that the board submit itself to his guidance.

Here Mr. Bergeron again reiterated his demand that a temporary chairman should be placed in the chair, and be moved that Mr. Markham be designated for this position. Once more, however, his efforts proved unavailing. Mr. Delaney stating that Mr. Donnelly's motion was already before the house. Mr. Bergeron was insistent. He said to Delaney, "I think you ought to step on a side." Mr. Delaney merely indicated that all would be well at the proper time. He again assured Mr. Bergeron that he would not vote, but Mr. Bergeron resumed his seat with no sign of being mollified by these guarantees.

Mr. Markham now put forward the observation that he didn't think the board had yet established what all the facts were. But Mr. Donnelly felt that the statements tended to establish the facts. He again urged that these be placed in the hands of the city solicitor. Mr. Bergeron's attitude was that the members "ought to do their work themselves, or all resign and let the city solicitor be the school board." He was undaunted by the intimation that independent action of the board might prove costly to the city. "Let it cost a million," he exclaimed.

Temporary Chairman

Here came the final combat in the Homerite struggle to enthrone a temporary chairman, and in it Mr. Delaney went down to defeat. The motion of Mr. Bergeron was finally put to the house, and Mr. Delaney, in marble tones, asked the secretary (Mr. Molloy) to call the roll. All, except Mr.

Markham, voted for the motion. Mr. Delaney set the seal on the proposition by also registering a yea vote.

With Mr. Markham in the chair, Mr. Molloy was asked for the documentary evidence, including lists of those taking examinations June 26, 1920, and prior to that date. He explained that for 1919 and 1920 he had two papers bearing the names, examination numbers, and other data of those taking examinations. But for 1920 he had but one of such papers. Mr. Delaney inquired if he had two papers for 1917 and 1918. "I can't say. It isn't necessary to keep these lists," replied the superintendent, Mr. Markham bearing him out.

Mr. Markham announced that he would now have the papers passed among the members. There was strong objection to this by Mr. Molloy, who indicated one paper and declared, "I don't want that one passed." "I'm going to allow it to be passed," was Mr. Markham's only response to the protest. Mr. Molloy now moved about with the papers, elucidating them to the individual board members. Mr. Donnelly said he supposed there was no possibility of mistake in the system employed by Mr. Molloy. "All the possibility in the world," opined Mr. Markham.

Mr. Molloy showed the members the sworn statement of Walter S. Young, of the Worcester school department, that he had corrected certain Lowell papers, and certified the correct placing of numbers. He received only numbers with the papers. Mr. Molloy alone had the names, with a key.

Calm Before Storm

"I presume," said Mr. Markham, "that the board has heard the statements and is acquainted with the papers." After some discussion and consultation of reports of meetings, relative to a little disagreement on a point of fact between the superintendent and Mr. Delaney, Mr. Bergeron moved the adoption of Mr. Molloy's recommendations that the six young women next on the eligible lists be appointed, and the four elected February 17 be dismissed. All was calm as Mr. Bergeron rose to make this motion; but it was the calm before the storm, which now broke in all its fury. Attorney Dennis J. Murphy, counsel for Miss Gertrude Lyons, one of the four in danger of dismissal, was first to speak. "I want to be heard," he declared, rising. Mr. Markham evinced a disinclination to entertain his request, on grounds of irregularity. Murmurs of "Public meeting, public meeting!" came from the spectators. Mr. Tierney, counsel for one of the four young women, was also upon his feet, but the hubbub somewhat died as Mr. Bergeron commented that this was a meeting, not a trial. "I'm satisfied that Mr. Molloy's statements are facts," he added.

Once again Mr. Donnelly proffered his suggestion that the board seek legal aid before proceeding further, this time putting it in form of a motion. On a roll call, the motion was declared defeated. Donnelly and Warner voting "Yes," Bergeron and Markham voting "No," and Delaney not voting. "Vote yes!" came in stentorian tones, evidently directed to Delaney, who asked a ruling that the tie mean "Yes." Markham said he would make no such ruling. Delaney then wished to doubt the vote. "You can ask for another roll call," came from the sidelines. "Certainly, I can ask for another roll call," repeated Mr. Delaney.

All efforts to have Mr. Markham reconsider his stand, however, proved fruitless, and Mr. Molloy's recommendations were read, relative to the dismissals, and the corresponding elections. Mr. Bergeron, taking the floor, declared his sorrow for the young ladies who would lose their positions by the passing of the motion, but

wanted to know "What about those who should have gained the positions?" There has been a wrong done, and it must be righted. I am satisfied that the report of Mr. Molloy is true."

Mr. Donnelly Again

Mr. Donnelly was again heard, counselling against too hot haste. If the motion was put through at once, he said, he would be inclined to vote for it. But he feared it might cost the city a pretty penny, and he favored that the meeting be thrown open to the representatives of the young ladies.

Hon. James E. O'Donnell asked that the board take a recess, to hear from those interested in the cases of the four young ladies. He based his plea on courtesy. Mr. Molloy wished to speak, as superintendent of schools and as a citizen. "Not as a citizen," suddenly burst forth Mr. Murphy, "because you have denied that right to us."

"You know you have no right to speak," warned Mr. Markham to Mr. Murphy. "Where do you get that?" came from Attorney Daniel Donohue, encoined on the side lines. Mr. Delaney was opposed to "listening to speeches all night" when Mr. Molloy started to address the board. Mr. Molloy said he would be very brief. Mr. Delaney demanded that the meeting proceed to Mr. Bergeron's motion. Mr. Bergeron objected to any interference with the motions by Mr. Delaney. Mr. Delaney pointed to the fact that Mr. Molloy had desired to speak. "But not to make motions," interpolated Mr. Markham. During this sparkling interplay of repartee, which continued so thick and fast at times as to defy chronicle, Mr. Bergeron shook a finger at Mr. Delaney, with the observation, "You tried to be the whole committee. That's why you got in wrong."

Spectators Warned

About this point in the proceedings, the spectators began to become quite obstreperous, and Mr. Markham adjured the police officer who was present to eject all disturbers of the harmony of the session. He gave forth the view that a recess would be of no avail. Seemingly unawed by the injunction to the bluecoat, a spectator ejaculated in loud tones, "Got it all fixed?"

"The future of those four young ladies is involved," pleaded Mr. O'Donnell. "Can't they examine the evidence?" Mr. Markham finally moved a recess, and the motion was carried. Mr. Murphy took the floor, and after facilitating the board upon its action in allowing informal discussion, said that the body would be making itself ridiculous if it passed the superintendent's recommendations and five minutes afterwards rescinded its action. "The board, he declared, had evidently lost sight of the fact that it was not only determining a question of fact, but depriving young women of jobs to which they were entitled by law, legally elected. He asserted that they should not be thrown out without substantial reason, after their long and costly preparations for their present vocation. He told of his client, Miss Gertrude Lyons, holding a responsible position in the Lexington public schools, at $1300. She wished, however, to locate in her home town, and applied. Mr. Molloy notified her of her election here, and she told him she would have to give a month's notice at Lexington. He informed her then that she should give a month's notice. Lexington offered her a $200 increase to remain, but she declined this opportunity. Mr. Murphy asked if it was fair to place a black mark against her record throughout the Commonwealth. She is next on the list, said Mr. Murphy, and if the board can take six new teachers it can take seven. He stressed the number of her recommendations, saying that everyone she had worked under has been glad to testify to her efficiency and faithfulness.

Mr. Tierney then arose and said: "This is an unusual situation; I won't characterize it otherwise. I appreciate the position that the board is in, and the position of the young ladies. I have no doubt that Mr. Molloy believes all that he submitted to the facts." Mr. Tierney added that he thought there was much merit in the suggestion of having the city solicitor to aid. He quite plainly warned the board that "if this vote is adopted, I see only a resort to the courts. I say candidly that it will be done, and the whole matter opened up." Mr. Tierney suggested a ten day delay, which might clear the atmosphere. He added, "I know you all wish to deal justly. But you must be certain that you deal legally."

Mr. O'Donnell spoke for his client along similar lines. He characterized the situation as "deplorable." He said he didn't want the girls in the school board involved in a law suit. He wanted an adjournment and a sort of round table discussion of members and representatives of the four young women.

How About the Others?

"But what," exclaimed Mr. Bergeron, "about the others, if we take care of these four? If we help these four, we are doing an injustice to many others. If any suggestion can be made as to how we can adjust matters, of course I shall be glad. But I can't see how it might be done. These other girls can sue the board as well as these four. If they want to sue we can't stop them." Mr. Markham suggested then that those who should have been given the positions, according to Mr. Molloy's testimony and evidence, should be elected, but that action on dismissing those allegedly selected wrongfully be referred. Mr. Markham and others seemed to feel that a postponement of action for a conference would leave matters in the same position. "They won't be in the same position," interjected the superintendent, "because I intend to put the matter in the hands of law officers before that time."

Ugly Words Passed

During this discussion, Mr. Delaney arose and made an impassioned address in which he gave the lie direct to Mr. Molloy. "He lies," and "He's a liar," flowed from the chairman's lips in excited tones. "It's all right for him to say that's right. Who doubts my word? But I maintain that his paper is not genuine. What is to prevent him from going into his office and putting his own numbers on it? My veracity is as good as his. I'll stake it against his. I defy anyone to say I've ever done anything not upright. Can the superintendent say the same?"

"I wish to say only this," began Mr. Molloy, but Delaney interrupted, objecting to any statement on the superintendent's part. "I'm not saying anything to you, sir," frigidly returned Mr. Molloy.

The motion was now put that the six young women believed wrongly deprived of positions be elected permanent substitutes and immediately afterwards elected teachers in the primary schools.

A motion now went through for a public conference with the representatives of the young ladies elected in February, and an adjournment was taken.

WHY BETTER STREETS?

There is one class of men and women in Lowell that will surely vote for contract work at the special election next Tuesday inasmuch as the change would furnish the only effective means under present conditions of securing better streets.

No class of citizens has suffered more from bad streets than the owners of automobiles and motor trucks. It is an acknowledged fact that an automobile driven with reasonable regularity through the streets of Lowell wears out very rapidly and costs a great deal for repairs. Repair shops understand the effect of the rough streets upon automobiles in causing the machinery to get out of order much more quickly than would be the case on reasonably good streets. A ride over some of the worst streets is nothing more than a series of jounces that are certainly very unpleasant to the occupants of the vehicle.

It is expected, therefore, that every person who owns an automobile or a motor truck in Lowell, will go to the polls next Tuesday and bring with them as many friends as they can to vote for the construction of streets by contract. This is a duty that the auto owners owe to themselves as well as to the city.

Another class that may be relied upon to favor contract work on streets is the interest of economy is made up of the taxpayers. They have never complained of large expenditures when they found that the city was getting its money's worth; but they do object to the waste and extravagance that has prevailed in the street department and of the very unsatisfactory results that are shown for the money expended. When they find that block paving can be laid for one-half what it costs when done by the street department, they may be excused if they enter a protest; and nowhere will their protest have such effect in bringing about reform, as if registered at the polls next Tuesday. Every vote cast there will be a protest against the present methods and in favor of a change that will give us better streets at a reasonable cost and that will do the work within a reasonable time.

All that the people of Lowell ask is that this city shall be allowed to take advantage of the plain business methods adopted by other progressive cities in having new streets constructed and old streets reconstructed. The chamber of commerce in its very excellent advertisements has brought a great deal of valuable information to bear upon this whole subject and it has shown that in the majority of cities, street work has been done by contract at a price in some cases not more than one-third of what the price appears to be in Lowell as indicated by the total amount spent for paving in 1920 and the total number of yards paved.

Wherever business is done upon business principles, there must be a contract specifying the nature of the work, the price and the time allowed for its completion. To prevent a city from adapting this method of doing business in any department, would be to place an insuperable barrier to progress and put a premium upon extravagance in the expenditure of the people's money. Hence it is, that the property owners throughout the city will find it to their own interest to go to the polls next Tuesday and vote yes on the question of contract work in street construction. The man who is struggling to pay for his little home or who already owns a home, finds that the taxes have been nearly doubled during the past few years and in spite of this, the city is still in debt. It is the duty of the departments in part responsible for this state of affairs, to come out to assuage those who are able, although without being able to offer any real argument in defence of the present system. If the figures put out by the chamber of commerce are not correct, there is time enough yet for the street department to give any other figures they may have, but the figures thus far published by the proponents of the petition are taken from the auditor's books at city hall and are, therefore, official. We do not expect that they can be contradicted. They show that the paying cost has been about twice as much as it might be done for under proper direction and to put a stop to this extravagance the taxpayers, large and small, will doubtless take advantage of the opportunity to record their votes in favor of a different method.

THE VISCOUNT'S INVITATION

Viscount Bryce is here to tell us a great many things about our government that we did not know before. He is an able English diplomat who is here to convince us, among other things, that the American democracy will never attain its highest ideals until it retraces its steps and joins hands with England in working out a common destiny. Of course he is thinking only of our interests. He is getting a great opportunity to lay his views on various topics before the American public through lectures before the Institute of Politics connected with Williamstown college. Here is one of the things he said: "When one traverses after nightfall a dangerous mountain path, the man who knows the path must be followed, whatever the risks. He may miss his way, he may perhaps wish to lead you astray, but if you have no knowledge of your own, it is better to follow him rather than to grope in the dark among precipitous rocks. European peoples have been groping in the dark for the last few years, and their relations to one another during and since the war have been left to a few guides."

It is difficult to determine whether from that similitude, he implies that as England is one of the guides and knows the mountain paths, the United States, which has been groping, should fall in line and follow her, or whether he meant to intimate that the groping of the European nations before the United States a great opportunity of leadership. Note the fine subtlety of this diplomatic invitation. It is equally open to both interpretations.

THE VOTERS' DUTY

Next Tuesday will be the first time in which any referendum question came up at a special election in this city. It is, therefore, of considerable importance that the citizens should get out and register their preference either for or against the question on the ballot.

There is always a satisfaction in knowing that the result of an election reflects the will of the people; but if only a small vote be cast, the result will show only the preference of a smaller minority. If the business men and women of Lowell interest themselves in good government they can have it, but if they go off on vacation and do not think it worth the while to return to vote, they will show the old spirit of indifference that has already done our city a vast amount of harm. Moreover, the people who neglect to do their duty as citizens are among the foremost to come out and criticize what they believe to be wrong in our city government. They forget that every individual citizen has a responsibility in promoting good government and in using the franchise for the best interests of the city and all its people.

HUGHES IS RIGHT

Secretary Hughes has gone Secretary Hoover one better in backing up the latter's demand that Russia release all American prisoners before we help feed her starving millions. "There can be no thought of better relations between America and Russia so long as Americans are held prisoners without warrant of law or grounds for their detention," is the straight-from-the-shoulder way the secretary of state puts it.

The secretary is right in leaving nothing to the discretion of the Bolshevik leaders.

The secretary's course is not only right but necessary at this time when Trotsky is talking of war with other countries of Europe as a means of getting food. He has destroyed the Russian supply and now threatens to raid the neighboring nations to seize what they possess. Most of the other nations have barely what is necessary for their own needs; but the Bolsheviks do not consider justice or right when they want anything that is in the possession of others.

THE POLICEMAN'S GUN

The police officer who goes out on his beat with a revolver on his hip, never knows when he will have to use it. Some officers never have occasion to use their revolvers; but that is no reason why they should not be able to use them promptly and with accurate aim in case of necessity. In Rhode Island, the other day, an officer ordered a passing automobile to stop, and as his command was not obeyed he fired at the vehicle, intending to send a bullet into one of the tires. Instead he sent it through the lungs of one of the passengers. He is now held on a charge of manslaughter. Possibly, had he been an expert shot, he might have been with his rights in firing at the tire; but not being an expert, he took a murderous chance in firing at the auto. It is reported that every officer should know when, where and how to use his revolver, even though he should never have occasion to use it. An officer who could hardly hit a load of hay at a hundred yards distance should not attempt feats of marksmanship that only an expert can perform.

DISARMAMENT CONFERENCE

Japan is opposed to the discussion of any unsettled or controversial questions at the proposed disarmament conference and is likely to insist upon being allowed freedom of expansion, which means that she will enter Manchuria, Siberia or some parts of China. She is opposed to bringing up the Yap or Shantung issues at the conference, which shows that she does not wish to enter any arrangement that will limit her ambition to pass beyond her present boundaries whenever she decides that the time is opportune for so doing. Apparently all the powers desire that the scope of the conference will be outlined in advance and Japan wants to keep it restricted to the single subject of armaments, or the agenda, as the matter is termed.

SAFER HIGHWAYS

Registrar Frank A. Goodwin is to be congratulated on the reduction in the number of deaths in auto accidents for the past month. There were 44 deaths during the month, of which 18 were children. In June there were 56, and in July of 1920 had 52. Commissioner John N. Cole of the state department of public works has appointed fifteen inspectors to enforce the automobile laws and regulations throughout the state but none of them hail from Lowell. It is hoped this step will aid Registrar Goodwin in driving the reckless drivers from the highways.

Candy prices have dropped in New York. One chain of candy stores has cut the prices 50 per cent, and according to the figures they were making 300 per cent profit. They are still making 150 per cent. That should serve as a hint for others to do likewise. Candy stores in this state still keep pretty close to war prices.

Apparently the late Cardinal Gibbons will have a worthy successor in Rt. Rev. M. J. Curley, the recent appointee to the see of Baltimore. He is a young man, distinguished for his learning, and his zeal in the cause of religion.

Miss Mary O'Toole having been appointed judge of the district court in Washington, D. C., by the president will have an opportunity to display the legal talent for which she is noted. As trustee of a bank she gave proof of her business and legal acumen.

Don't grumble at the federal taxes that meet you at every turn of the road; you are helping the European nations to escape paying their just debt to us. Although they are keen enough about collecting the last dollar that Germany owes them.

Plymouth can now start toward her quadricentennial rejoicing. She has had all the honors the nation could conveniently bestow upon her tercentenary observance. She had better try to expand a little before her next birthday.

The republicans are giving the tariff a rest while they tear down some of the war taxes and pile on others almost equally heavy, but resting on other shoulders.

SEEN AND HEARD

The beauty of going to bed early is that you get out of harm's way.

The reckless autist and the lay walker make the traffic officer's life miserable.

We could be jailed for what we think of the guy who asks to have a paper of a certain date set aside for him and who never calls or sends for it.

Farm Power

The farmers are coming into their own in Canada and it is predicted that in the not far distant future they will control the government of the dominion. They are already very powerful in the province of Alberta and have just elected one of their own people premier of the province. He's an honest-to-goodness dirt farmer, too. Began life as a farm laborer and has worked at his trade ever since.

Next Thing to It

The wife of the profiteer was having great grief over the furnishing of the large house. She did not know the names of ordinary articles of furniture, and the more ornamental things completely puzzled her. One day a woman said to her: "Have you read Lamb's 'Tales'?" She thought for a while, and then answered nervously: "No, but I've got a gray sheepskin rug."

The Tell Tale Hole

An artist, who was extremely shabby, was walking along the Boulevard des Italiens in Paris one day. Some one hailed him from the front. He turned and saw a famous painter hurrying after him. Being much flattered, the artist said, with a touch of pride: "So you recognized me from behind?" "Yes," replied the famous painter, with a malicious laugh. "I spied you through a hole in your coat."

A Man's Reputation

Chicago police went only in squads, heavily armed, when they sought "Terrible Tommy" O'Connor, wanted in connection with three murders and many robberies. They knew his reputation. A. J. Legg, Pullman porter, didn't. When O'Connor, waving two guns, tried to hold up Legg's car near St. Paul, the unarmed negro mixed with him and tossed "Terrible Tommy" off the train so violently that the desperado didn't have enough strength to resist arrest when the train was stopped.

Treacherous Judgment

A visitor in Kentucky came across that rare specimen, an unmarried colored man. The negro was a quite elderly person, not shabby, but quite industrious, so the Northern man was curious and determined to find out why he had remained single. "Uncle Jim, how does it happen that you are opposed to matrimony?" the old fellow looked up with a grave face, but there was a twinkle in his eye as he replied: "Me, suh? I ain't opposed to matrimony. Well, maybe I have never married," his inquisitor continued. "Haven't you seen any one you liked?" "Lawdy, yessah—but you see it thisaway: I couldn't risk my judgment."

The Sultan Eats a Banana

Abdul Hamid clapped his hands. In the proverbial trice, a huge negro, wearing the magnificent liver of the Imperial household, stood with head bowed and hands folded before the sovereign. "Get me a banana," said Abdul Hamid. The negro raised his hands, covered his face to signify that he had received his command, and backed from the room. He re-entered. On a dish of gold (part of the historic plate of the House of Osman) that glittered with precious gems, he bore a solitary banana. "They are not very ripe as yet," said Abdul, as he took the fruit. He peeled it and threw the skin on the plate. He bit off half. This he chewed with great difficulty, taking care to masticate thoroughly and periodically (humping his chest) "I don't believe I'm eating too much of an evening. I shan't sleep if I finish it. You finish it, Himm! Never waste the good things with which Allah has endowed us." The general, the sultan's son-in-law, bowing on a dish of gold (part of the historic plate of the House of Osman) that glittered with precious gems, he bore a solitary banana. "They are not very ripe as yet," said Abdul, as he took the fruit. He peeled it and threw the skin on the plate. He bit off half. Seven Former White Sox and Two Alleged Gamblers Stand Legally Cleared of Any Connection With Alleged Plot to Throw Series. Verdict Cheered.

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—The seven former Chicago White Sox players and two alleged gamblers brought to trial in the baseball scandal case today stood legally cleared of any connection with the alleged conspiracy for the White Sox to throw the 1919 world series to Cincinnati. A jury last night having found them not guilty on the first ballot.

The verdict, freeing Buck Weaver, Happy Felsch, Chick Gandil, Joe Jackson, Claude Williams, Swede Risberg and Eddie Cicotte—the former players—and Carl Zerk of St. Louis and David Zeluck of Des Moines, was rendered shortly before midnight, amidst a scene of wild cheering, whistling and yelling from 500 spectators who would have seemed more natural in the bleachers of a baseball park than in the dignified courtroom of Judge Hugo Freund.

to establish order out of the pandemonium which broke loose despite the judge's previous request. The judge finally motioned to let the demonstration go and joined in by congratulating the defendants and telling the jury it had returned a just verdict.

While only nine of the 18 persons indicted in the baseball investigation were defendants when the case came on for trial, the baseball scandal has been forever swept from the boards so far as the courts of Cook county are concerned.

Other's Under Indictment

Bill Burns' case was dismissed in return for his evidence for the state and during the trial the cases of Ben and Louis Lev of Kokomo, Ind., were dropped. Abe Attell, Hal Chase, Fred Wheeler, Rachel first of New York, J. J. Sullivan of Boston and Ben Franklin of St. Louis are still under indictment, but it was reported at the state attorney's office today that their cases

The attorneys for the prosecution today had little to say of the case, but the defense pointed to the fact that only one ballot was taken by the jury as an absolute vindication of the defendants.

Today the jurors expressed surprise that the case had been allowed to drag through five weeks. Every juror declared that the defense would have received the same verdict had it run the case to the jury without presenting any witnesses.

Weak Case by State

"We thought the state had presented a weak case," said one juror. "It depended entirely on Bill Burns and Burns did not make a favorable impression with any of us."

The jurors refused to say whether, in reaching their verdict they were of the opinion that there was no attempt to throw games in the 1919 world series or whether it was based on the contention that the state had failed to prove its charge that there was an attempt to defraud the public and various individuals through the throwing of the series.

Players Express Joy

The seven former players were jubilant over their acquittal. Joe Jackson, former star outfielder, was the only one who declared he was "through with organized baseball." The others said they would leave their baseball future in the hands of the officials of organized baseball.

"The jury could not have returned a fairer verdict," said Jackson. "But I don't want to go back to organized baseball. I am through with it."

Weaver Seeks Old Position

"Everybody knew I had nothing to do with this so-called conspiracy," said "Buck" Weaver, once the third baseman of the White Sox. "I believe that I should be given my old position back."

cannot express my contempt for Bill Burns."

"I am entirely innocent and the jury has proven that," said Charles Felsch, former shortstop. "I leave my future in organized baseball in the hands of the officials."

Williams and Cicotte Talk

"How could the verdict have been anything else?" asked Claude Williams, pitcher. "I'm going to stick in semi-professional baseball."

"All I want to do is to get to Detroit," said Eddie Cicotte, once the leading pitcher of the American league, while he shook hands with the jurors. "Think, did you say? Never again. I talked in this building, never again."

The jury has said all that I can say," said Oscar Felsch, former outfielder. "I am not guilty and never had anything to do with any so-called conspiracy."

To Form Semi-Pro Team

"I never had any doubt about the verdict," said "Chick" Gandil, former first baseman who did not return to the White Sox in the 1920 season. "If it had not been for those two lars, Bill Burns and Billy Maharg, I would have not been here. We are going to form a semi-professional team in Chicago and play a few games for the benefit of the wounded soldiers."

David Zeluck of Des Moines, alleged first lieutenant of Arnold Rothstein in the conspiracy, declared that he never knew Rothstein and had nothing to do with any conspiracy.

"I don't know why they brought me up here," said Carl Zerk of St. Louis, another defendant. "I never knew any of the other defendants until I met them in court."

Fred McMullin, former utility infielder, named in the scandal but who was not on trial, was the victim of hard luck in the baseball trial, it became known today.

McMullin's Hard Luck

vestigation, McMullin came here from California at his own expense to stand trial.

After two weeks the case was dropped and McMullin, broke, borrowed money to get back to California and take a job as a sign painter.

Indicted in the second investigation, McMullin sent word that he could not afford the trip to Chicago, but would come for trial if the state paid his way. He received no answer and finally got together enough money for the trip.

McMullin arrived here the day after the trial began—a fact not known until today. He was too late to go on trial, and returned to California. His former teammates believe that this one day's delay prevented McMullin from sharing in the verdict of not guilty, although it is not believed that the state will ever press the indictment against him.

Jurors and Players Celebrate

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—In a little Italian restaurant on Chicago's West Side, early today, the former White Sox players, indicted in the baseball scandal, accidentally met the 12 jurors who last night found them not guilty of the charges brought by the state. The judges of facts in the case joined with the men whose fate had been in their hands for five weeks in a celebration that did not end until sunrise.

The jurors went to the restaurant for a farewell dinner before returning to their homes. The players and their attorneys went for the same purpose. The two parties soon discovered each other in adjoining rooms, the doors were thrown open and the parties became one.

If this jury could decide whether the acquitted players would be permitted to return to organized baseball, there would be no doubt of a favorable verdict for each of the 12 went to the players as they separated and expressed a desire to see them on a major league team again.

Eddie Cicotte drew particular attention from the jurors, for it was Cicotte who caught most of the state's fire in the trial. One of them grasping him by the hand said:

"Eddie, we were talking the other night about you and I want you to know that every man on this jury hopes that the next time he sees you, you'll be in the center of the diamond putting out fires."

PING BRODIE IN BOSTON UNIFORM

BOSTON, Aug. 3.—Ping Bodie, obtained by the Red Sox in trade with the New York Yankees last week, will make his debut in a Boston uniform today. It had been reported that he would refuse to join the locals.

A testimonial planned by local fans for Harry Hooper, former Red Sox captain, has been postponed, as Hooper did not accompany the White Sox here for the series of which today's game was the first. Sixth place binged upon the result of today's game, the Sox teams being tied.

Extremes of "Perpetua" will be shot in France.

Great Britain Wins Trial Race

COWES, Isle of Wight, Aug. 3.—(By the Associated Press)—Great Britain won the third of the series of international races for six metre yachts, sailed here today. The British yachts scored 21 points as against 15 points for their American competitors.

Centralvilles Defeat Gillespies and Get Next to the Twilight League Championship

Last evening on the South common the Centralvilles soundly trounced the Gillespies and thereby made themselves practically certain of the Twilight league championship.

The score was 5 to 0, but the game was not so one-sided as these figures would seem to indicate for up until the sixth when Ray Foye knocked a home run with two on there was imminent danger that the Gillespies might win the score, the sixth, however, their hopes waned.

Wheeler, a veteran of many seasons active service, was on the mound for the winners and he pitched a wonder game of ball. He seemed to be an adept at placing the ball where the batter was weakest and time and time again he proved that he was familiar with all the little weaknesses of the men who faced him. His arm was good but his head was better, and the combination spelled victory for his team.

Charles Bird pitched for the Gillespies and he fooled his opponents in fine style until the sixth inning when they fooled him. His slow ball was the best delivery that he had.

The first scoring was done by Centralville in the fourth. Cawley and Walter Foye singled. R. Foye went out on a beautiful sacrifice to third, and then Lynch came through with a two batter to left, scoring Cawley and Foye. A Foye grounded out and Bradbury lifted a fly to Adams. Score, 2-0.

In the sixth, Centralville got three more. W. Foye singled to left, R. Foye reached first on an error by Williams and then Arthur Foye came to bat and knocked a sizzler to O'Hare which took a bad bounce just as O'Hare was about to scoop it up. The result was a home run. Bradbury singled, but went out at second on Wheeler's grounder to Brosnan. The score:

Rumors Of Revolution In Lisbon

LONDON, Aug. 3.—A Reuter dispatch filed in Madrid yesterday states that, following rumors from Vigo that a revolution had broken out in Lisbon, a telegram received direct from the Portuguese capital said extensive precautionary measures had been taken in that city. Troops had been brought in from the provinces, the dispatch added, but all was quiet in Lisbon and throughout the country. The troops in Lisbon are said to be confined to their barracks. British official circles and the Portuguese legation in this city were not able today to throw any light on the reports of disorders in Portugal.

charges of Atty. Gen. J. Weston Allen of a conspiracy to "frame" Capt. Chas. F. Stearns of Waltham in an immoral act in order to assist his wife to get a divorce.

Mr. Tufts' account of a now-famous interview with Mrs. Stearns, who had consulted him regarding divorce proceedings, was an emphatic contradiction of the testimony previously given by Mrs. Annie E. Brown, who had charged the district attorney with suggesting that a divorce case could be "arranged" through a woman who would be sent to "trap" Capt. Stearns. But it bore sufficient resemblance to Mrs. Brown's version to bring into relief the contention of Mr. Tufts' attorney that Mrs. Brown's story was "not a fabrication, but the imaginative creation of a woman who got things all mixed up."

"Catching" Not "Trapping" For example, Mr. Tufts admitted that he talked with Mrs. Stearns about "catching" her husband, but in reply to her repeated assurances that he believed her husband was unfaithful and her request to be advised how she could prove it. Then, he said, he told her that detectives could be employed to follow Capt. Stearns and catch him if, in fact, he was doing the things of which she suspected him.

He repudiated Mrs. Brown's assertions that he had suggested the employment of a woman to go to Fortress Monroe, Va., and trap Captain Stearns.

"I never said anything of the kind," he stated with his habitually quick, prompt phrasing. "I had no woman."

"Did you ever know of such a woman or know of its being done?" pursued his senior counsel, Fletcher Ranney.

"Never."

Rumors Spread Against Him

Mr. Tufts further stated that although Mrs. Stearns may have asked his advice as to the employment of Mr. Coakley, he never knew of Coakley's connection with the case, nor of any further developments in the matter, until the fall of 1919 when he saw Mr. Allen, candidate for attorney-general, talking with Captain Stearns at a republican gathering. Subsequently, he said, he heard rumors of things Capt. Stearns was saying against him and learned "the name of the man who was spreading the rumors."

In view of this statement, Special Asst. Atty. Gen. Henry F. Hurlburt, in cross-examination, introduced an affidavit made by Mrs. Brown in December, 1918, long before this campaign. A copy of it was in the hands of the defense; he contended, and on it "Mr. Tufts has framed his testimony." This statement to the court brought out Mr. Ranney's reply as to his attitude toward Mrs. Brown's statement.

Chief Justice Rusk, after a brief conference with his associates, ruled that the affidavit is admissible if Mr. Tufts contends that Mrs. Brown's version was an imaginative one arising after the interview occurred.

"We certainly do," was Mr. Ranney's comment.

Heard Coakley Was High-Priced

Mr. Hurlburt, with suave and subtle manner, then proceeded to cross-examine Mr. Tufts for half an hour. Tufts declared that Mrs. Stearns spoke of employing Mr. Coakley only after he, the district attorney, had positively refused to take her case and she had expressed objections to employ-

MRS. IDA JANE DUTTON

"Helping women find themselves." That, says Mrs. Ida Jane Dutton, is the particular mission which she has selected for herself. And in that thought was born the New York Exchange for Women's Work, which has well over 2000 consignors all over the United States. Mrs. Dutton is manager of the concern, which employs 70 people. The board of managers is composed of 10 New York women who assisted Mrs. Dutton in getting the project under way. The building in which the exchange is housed is a five-story high—built a year ago under the direction of Mrs. Dutton. In this Mrs. Dutton accomplished the seemingly impos-

CONTRACT STREET WORK

Speakers at Mass Meeting Attack Paving by Contract Proposition

The mass meeting held on the South common last evening under the auspices of the Lowell citizens' committee was attended by over 5000 people and all listened attentively to the addresses delivered against the adoption of the amendment providing that the construction and reconstruction of streets in this city be done by contract work. The meeting was held immediately after the twilight baseball game and in the course of the

ble. The plan of the organization was to open it in September. They were told, however, by the contractor, that it would be impossible to open the building before January. Mrs. Dutton went on with her plans for a September opening and told the contractor that the building had to be completed by that time. Further, she was on the ground most of the time, watching the very hammering in of nails and placing of structural work. And in September the New York Women's Exchange was formally opened for business. "Our effort," says Mrs. Dutton, "has opened for the women in the little villages and towns a way to meet their financial problems without leaving their homes. They mail their products to us and we sell them for them."

evening concert numbers were given by a brass band, while the Honey Boy quartet entertained with selections. The meeting was opened by Michael Regan, who introduced as presiding officer, James Dacey. The principal speaker was William P. Larkin, an organizer for the International Association of Machinists, who in his opening remarks referred to the hearing before the municipal council some weeks ago, at which time the members of the chamber of commerce endeavored to have the wages of the city laborers reduced. He said the chamber is now sore because it did not succeed in its plans and it is now attacking the street laborers. He stated that in his opinion some of the members of the chamber do not care about the cost of contract labor, and they do not care about the cost of municipal labor, their desire is to install the system. "We are told," he continued, "that in Boston the streets are paved under the contract system for $3.50 a square yard. This afternoon I read a report from Somerville where the streets are paved under contract and I found that it cost $7.15 per square yard. If it cost only $3.50 in Boston will you tell me how it costs $7.15 in Somerville, which is on the outskirts of Boston?" The statement of the chamber of commerce that there will be no cheap labor under the contract system, was referred to as a joke by the speaker, who said there is nothing to prevent a contractor from offering 34 or 35 cents an hour for paving laborers. That will let the contractor out, he said, for no Lowell man will work for that money, and the result will be that the contractor will go to the West Indies or to the South Sea Islands and bring men to work here, and eventually there will not be a white man on the job.

Mr. Regan spoke briefly, saying that Secretary Wells of the chamber of commerce did not make a real attempt to get the proper figures on municipal paving from the street department office. These figures, he said, are available at any time. The last speaker was Joseph F. Convery of the fire department, who urged all who are not already registered to attend the registration session and have their names placed on the check list so as to be able to cast their ballots against the referendum next Tuesday. In closing he criticized the chamber of commerce, saying it was organized to promote industry, but so far had done very little along that line.

PRES. HARDING HAS DAY OF REST

War Weeks' Lodge in the
White Mountains

the Outside World

LANCASTER, N. H., Aug. 3.—President Harding found today the seclusion and easement from the cares of office for which he has expressed a desire often since he became chief executive. As a guest of Secretary Weeks at his country home on the summit of Mount Prospect, the president and Mrs. Harding with a party of friends began with a day of rest a vacation which is to last until the end of the week at least. A closed private road is the only approach to their retreat and telephone, four miles away at the foot of the mountain is the nearest connection with the outside world.

It is expected that about their only trips outside the Weeks estate during their stay here will be to nearby golf courses and for sport motor rides in the White mountains. The president expects to give attention only to such public business as will not permit of delay.

The president and Mrs. Harding reached the Weeks lodge last yesterday by motor from Portland, Me., where they had left the yacht Mayflower after a cruise from Washington. They probably will return to the capital by the same route, leaving here Saturday or Sunday.

MATRIMONIAL

The marriage of Mr. Joseph Landry and Mrs. Malvina I. Brown, both of this city, took place August 1 at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. S. A. Frank, 416 Meridian street, East Boston, the ceremony being performed by Rev. George W. Warren, pastor of the East Boston Presbyterian church. The couple will make their home at 516 Pine street, this city.

Ryan-Parker
Mr. William S. Ryan, son of Police Lieutenant and Mrs. Ryan, and a prominent inspector of the health department, and Miss Frances Parker, a popular young lady of the Highlands, were married at a nuptial mass celebrated at St. Margaret's church at 9 o'clock this morning by the pastor, Rev. Charles Gilligan. Rev. John P. Flynn, O.M.I., and Rev. T. Franklin Wood, O.M.I., of the Sacred Heart church occupied seats within the sanctuary. The church was well filled with relatives and friends of the popular couple. A musical program of rare excellence arranged by Miss Katherine Hennessy was rendered. As the bride party entered the church, the wedding march was played by Prof. Louis Guilbault. Fred G. Bond gave "Saludum Fac" from the Te Deum by Garland, impressively. At the offertory Miss Hennessy and Mr. Bond sang "Ave Maria" from the opera of Maritana. Intermezzo by organist Guilbault followed. Miss Hennessy then sang the beautiful voice "O Promise Me." The Postlude, by Rahelie was played by the organist at the conclusion of the mass. The couple were attended by Miss Nora Ryan and Mr. Thomas Ryan, sister and brother of the groom. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride in Stevens st.

Mousse-Durant
Mr. Hippolyte Mousse and Miss Marie Marie Durant were married today at a nuptial mass celebrated in the private chapel of St. Joseph's rectory at 7 o'clock, the officiating clergyman being Rev. L. J. Brassard, O.M.I. The bride wore white crepe de chine with hat to match and carried bridal roses. She was attended by Mr. Joseph Durant, while the groom's witness was Mr. Arthur Moulner. At the close of the ceremony the bride party repaired to the home of the bride, 17 North Franklin court, where a wedding breakfast was served. Later the couple left on an extended honeymoon trip and upon their return they will make their home in this city.

Without Advertising
When approached again this morning regarding a reply to the charges that he had bought paving blocks in considerable quantities without advertising for bids, the purchasing agent said: "He is not here and we do not know where he is, or when he will be in his office again." The promised statement did not materialize during the day.

Mayor is to Start Probe

If the mayor carries out what is said to be his intention to probe into conditions mentioned in the letter of the secretary of the chamber of commerce, the purchasing agent will probably be one of the first persons to be asked to appear on the carpet in the small corner room in city hall in which the city's chief executive makes his headquarters.

Officials Sceptical

City hall officials, when told of the coming investigation today, were skeptical as to any valuable results being obtained from the probe. It was pointed out that the mayor has no more control over the purchasing agent's office than a private individual. The purchasing agent, it is claimed, is by virtue of provisions of the city charter, a sort of municipal czar. He can only be called to account by the municipal council acting as a whole.

When asked to give his version of the alleged purchase of over $20,000 worth of granite paving blocks without the formality of advertising for bids, Purchasing Agent Foye promised yesterday morning to have a written statement ready for publication early in the day. To all later inquiries at the purchasing agent's office the reply of attendants was: "He is not here and we do not know where he is, or when he will be in his office again." The promised statement did not materialize during the day.

Former Lawrence City Marshal Ends Life

Arrests Sequel to Seizure of Liquor Ship

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—Arrests of several wealthy and prominent men on charges of conspiracy to violate the federal prohibition law, were promised by federal authorities here today as a sequel to the capture of the schooner Henry L. Marshall, towed into port yesterday with a cargo of liquor on board. Members of the crew, it was intimated, had given the authorities important "leads" concerning the financial sponsors of the Marshall and other rum-runners which are said to have plied between the Bahama Islands and the American coastal three mile limit.

SUB-POSTOFFICE FOR WEST CENTRALVILLE

If the recommendations of Postmaster John F. Meehan to the postal authorities at Washington are approved a sub-postoffice will soon be established in West Centralville. The postmaster has received a petition signed by Thomas F. Garvey, president of the Centralville Improvement association; Donat Champagne, president; Narcisse Gadbois, treasurer and Ferdinand Lussier, secretary of the Centralville Social club, requesting that a sub-postoffice be established in the store of Joseph A. Biron at the corner of Alken avenue and West Sixth streets, and he stated today that he will recommend the granting of the petition.

The nearest sub-postoffices to West Centralville are those in Bridge street and Moody and Alken streets, a distance of over half a mile. Some years ago, while Hon. John T. Sparks owned the drug store at the corner of Lakeview avenue and Alken avenue, a sub-postoffice was established there, but some three years ago when the store was purchased by Charles L. Cordeau, the latter gave it up on the ground that because of the war he was unable to secure help. Since that time the district has been without a sub-postoffice.

Sun classified ads will be read in twenty thousand homes tonight.

WALTER E. GUYETTE Auctioneer

Office, 83 Central St., Lowell, Mass. Telephone 2415.

The owner of this full two and one-half story two-tenement house and about 5000 square feet of land, more or less, situated at Nos. 207-209 Ludlum street, Centralville, has decided to make sale and therefore has instructed the auctioneer to sell at unrestricted public sale to the highest bona fide bidder upon the premises on next Saturday, the sixth day of August, 1921, at 4 o'clock p. m.

The house is of the full two and one-half story type, of two tenements, with separate entrances, has five rooms and pantry and bathroom to each tenement. Each tenement is supplied with open plumbing, china closets, gas, has sewer and water connections.

There are large verandas, the cellar are divided. The house is high studded, has a plentiful supply of closet room and is extra well constructed, is in very good order both inside and out, is of pleasing design, convenient to the tenant.

The upper tenant has occupied the one tenement for a considerable period and pays a rental the sum of $216 per year, which is an extremely low rental for tenements of this character. The lower flat is at present free of tenants and would enable a purchaser to have immediate occupancy. Already offers have been made ranging in price from $20 to $25 by prospective tenants for this apartment. It therefore assures an owner a steady and continuous rental that would pay heavy return on the amount invested.

To the many, many home seekers the opportunity is herein presented to buy at open competition an attractive, well situated home and investment property.

Its location, within very close proximity to many of Lowell's larger manufacturing industries, within one minute actual walking distance of the Hovey Square line of electric cars and within three minutes actual walking distance of the Lakeview avenue line and within seven minutes actual walking distance of the Bridge street line adds greatly to its value either as a home property or from the investors standpoint.

Terms: $400 must be paid to the auctioneer as soon as the property is struck off. Other terms made known at the sale.
